C-54 Hits Jap Mount; 35 Are Feared Killed

TOKYO—(UP)—A U. S. Air Force C-54 plane carrying 35 persons crashed into a mountainside 60 miles south of Tokyo last night and all aboard were believed killed.

An official here said the passengers were believed to have included several members of an Allied Headquarters trade mission which had been scheduled to return to Tokyo last night from Manila after negotiating a Japanese-Philippines trade agreement.

Officials said the plane carried 27 military and civilian passengers and eight crew members. All of them were believed to be Americans.

In Manila, the Philippine Foreign Office confirmed that four members of an Allied Supreme Command mission that negotiated a trade agreement there were believed to have been on the plane.

An early announcement by the Air Force said the plane crashed on Shining God Mountain, near sacred Mt. Fuji, 75 miles south of here.

Later, however, the Japanese national police said the plane's wreckage had been found on Hirugatake Mountain in the Tanazawa Range about 60 miles south of Tokyo.

The Command mission included: Frank Pickelle, chief of Gen. MacArthur's Foreign Trade Division; J. G. Torrens, Trade Area Co-ordinator; Maj. R. C. O'Hara, B. W. Adams and Miss T. M. Tonole. All have been in the Foreign Trade Division.

A U. S. Headquarters official said there was a possibility that one member of the party did not board the plane when it left Clark Field, Manila, yesterday.

The Phillipine Foreign Office spokesman said that O'Hara had decided not to return to Tokyo and had gone to Davao, on the island of Mindanao, instead.

Prisoners Ruin Cell Furniture

Tower Bad Boys Brandish Knives

By KEELER McCARTNEY

Fulton deputies today redoubled precaution on two knife-wielding prisoners who put out of commission two entire cell blocks in Fulton Tower.

"It couldn't have been much worse if lightning had struck," said Chief Jailer Hugh W. Cromer. He pointed to nine commodes and wash basins smashed to rubble.

Joseph Mauldin said Curtis Taylor, two long-term prisoners are escape artists responsible for the melee, were still boisterous in separate padlock cells.

The damage was caused in cell blocks Three and Four North.

"They wanted to be moved to two North," Cromer commented. "I couldn't do that because Eason Anderson, Luther Masters, Herman Webb and Roy Mauldin already are in the cell.

"That's about enough for one cell."

When the transfer request was ignored, Cromer said Taylor and Mauldin seized heavy metal garbage cans and began smashing commodes and water basins. He added they drew pocket knives when deputies appeared.

Taylor meekly surrendered his knife when he saw deputies armed with tear gas guns, Cromer related. Mauldin, however, shouted: "Shoot your —— gun and see if I care."

Fulton Dets. J. W. Estes and M. H. Williams, who were in the Tower to interview another prisoner, assisted deputies in wrestling the knife from Mauldin.

Cromer immediately cancelled plans for his vacation, which was scheduled to begin today, and ordered Taylor and Mauldin placed in single cells under padlocks. He ordered visitors to the more dangerous prisoners reduced and posted an outside guard to patrol around the Tower yard.

"We found a tape dangling out one of the windows last night," he declared. "It's easy to toss a string out a window and for someone on the outside to tie a knife or anything else onto. That's probably how Taylor and Mauldin got the knives."

Lattimore Answers: 'Gossip'

Woman Ex-Red Called as Witness

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Owen Lattimore asserted yesterday that testimony against him by ex-Communist Louis F. Budenz was nothing but "gossip and hearsay."

The Baltimore Far Eastern expert struck back at Budenz as Senate investigators subpoenaed an ousted woman Communist leader and two ex-FBI men to testify behind closed doors Tuesday on charges that Lattimore is a Russian spy.

Issuance of the supoenas was announced by Edward P. Morgan, Chief Counsel for the Senate committee investigating the charges hurled by Sen. Josepr R. McCarthy, Republican, Wisconsin, against Lattimore.

Budenz swore before the subcommittee Thursday that he was "officially told by Communist leaders" that Lattimore was a member of a Soviet spy cell assigned to influence U. S. foreign policy on behalf of the Chinese Communists.

Lattimore, who will answer Budenz in sworn testimony before the investigators next week, called a news conference to repeat and expand on his vigorous denials that he ever was a Communist or a Red sympathizer.

The witness subpoenaed yesterday were Bella V. Dodd, former member of the Communist Party National Committee who was expelled from the party last June; Lawrence Kerley, an FBI agent from 1937 to 1945, now on the staff of The New York Journal-American; and John J. Huber, who claims 10 years service as an undercover informant of the FBI within the Communist Party. All live in New York or its suburbs.

60-Foot Fall Injures Four

Four Hapeville men were injured, one seriously, yesterday in a 60-foot fall from a scaffold at the Buckeye Cotton Oil Company, 69 University Ave., S. W.

Emory Eugene Manley, 24, was admitted to Grady Hospital with injuries to the back and foot, Ptl. E. B. Lyle and D. S. Harris said. John Bedford White, 41; Thomas B. White, 44, and Ted White, 24, were treated at Grady for cuts and bruises.

The four, employees of a roofing concern, were applying paper to the roof of a building, patrolmen related. They were standing on a ladder held by a hook caught on the crest of the roof. The hook broke, officers said, and dumped the workmen to the ground 60 feet below.

SON COMFORTS MRS. KATHLEEN DREWRY

Drewry's Ex-Wife Gets 2-4 Years

Is Found Guilty by Clarke Jury In Shooting of Dean's Companion

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

ATHENS—Mrs. Kathleen Merry Drewry was sentenced last night to serve two to four years in prison for assault with intent to murder her ex-husband's second wife, Mrs. Miriam Thurmond Drewry.

A Clarke County jury after four hours of deliberation found Mrs. Drewry "guilty as charged" and fixed her penalty in a verdict returned at 8:23 p. m.

Following the verdict, Rupert Brown, attorney for the attractive former wife of Dean John Drewry, of the University of Georgia's Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, entered a motion for a new trial.

Date for a hearing on the motion was set by Judge Henry West for July 8 and bond, which friends posted after some delay, was fixed at $5,000.

Mrs. Drewry already is under $5,000 bond for the indictment in the shooting of Dean Drewry.

Trembling slightly, the bareheaded defendant rose and stood silently as the Court said: "In accordance with the jury's verdict, I sentence you to serve two to four years in prison."

She then slumped into her chair and Milton, her 18-year-old son, ran around the table and kissed her.

Dean Drewry and his 26-year-old present wife left the Clarke County Courthouse when the jury retired.

Reached by telephone following the verdict, he said: "I have no comment on the verdict. I regret, however, the unkind and untrue allegations in the defendant's unsworn statements."

Asked if Mrs. Miriam Drewry would like to comment, the Dean checked with her and said his statement would stand for both.

The ex-Mrs. Drewry shed no tears at the verdict, but looked tense and strained and rubbed her eyes occasionally.

"I just don't know what they based their decision on," she said of the jury. "I can't imagine how they reached a verdict like that."

She then turned to Atty. Brown: "What am I to do between now and then (the date of the motion on her appeal)? I can't stand any more of what I've been through. I need to get a job, but who will hire me while I have a case pending against me?"

Mrs. Drewry had remained in the courtroom, with members of her family, while the jury was out. When the verdict was returned, she continued to sit there, awaiting the arrival of friends to sign her bond.

Mrs. Drewry's bond was signed by Thomas L. Elder, Clark County Commissioner; Charles Parrott, loan company operator, and Henry C. Keller, restaurant operator.

The case went to the jury at 4:23 p. m. and an hour later, the jury asked for a recharge on the question of delusional insanity.

Judge West reread that portion of his charge, which directed the jury that a person was sane in the eyes of the law as long as he was able to distinguish between right and wrong.

The packed courtroom showed none of the usual spaces caused by departing curiosity-seekers at the end of a trial, but a sizable crowd gathered around a self-styled "psychiatric expert," who held forth loudly and humorously on the developments in the Dec. 23 shooting.

The witness was white-haired Mrs. Loyce F. Cargile, who said she was president of the National Psychiatric Reform Institute and who was vehemently protesting the failure of attorneys to call her as a witness.

The jury had three alternatives. It could find Mrs. Drewry (1) not guilty; (2) guilty of assault with intent to murder, which would carry a penalty of from two to 10 years; (3) guilty of shooting at another, which has a minimum penalty of one year and a maximum of four years' imprisonment.

In charging the jury, Judge West said the Georgia law does not recognize temporary insanity but the jury had the responsibility of deciding whether or not the defendant, at the time of the shooting, had "mind and understanding to distinguish between right and wrong."

He instructed the jury in beginning its deliberations to first determine whether or not the defendant was sane or insane. If she is found sane, the jury may then go into the merits of the case, Judge West said.

Members of the jury were: Carroll Thomas, assistant football coach at the University; G. W. Hammond, tractor salesman; R. G. Harper, clothing merchant; R. L. Towns, textile firm employee; Harold Brittain, floor sander; E. M. Brackett, post office clerk; P. M. Evans, warehouse superintendent; Wayne R. Shields, director of recreation and parks for the City of Athens; George W. Finger, Jr., machinist; J. S. Garrison, railway employee; Charles Lunsford, Sr., grocer, and J. A. Bruce, insurance man.

The 12 were selected from 70 veniremen after 34 potential jurors were dismissed because most of them said they were prejudiced. The majority were middle-aged, church-going, married men.

Mrs. Drewry was on trial for the specific shooting of her husband's present wife. Her shooting of Drewry was not included in the indictment on trial. She may be tried later on a second indictment charging assault with intent to murder the dean.

Describing the first Mrs. Drewry "as a woman scorned," Pollock, during the final argument, waved at Drewry and his present

Fast-Stepping President Beams Approval of Fort Benning Might

FORT BENNING—President Truman, paying his first visit to Georgia since becoming Chief Executive, yesterday beamed here as the world's largest infantry installation put on a massive display of military might for his benefit.

Nearly all of the nation's top "brass" both civilian and military, including members of Truman's cabinet, was here for the presidential visit.

The President was greeted during the afternoon by Gov. Talmadge who was invited by Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., Commanding General of the Third Army.

From the time he landed in his four-motored plane, The Independence, the nation's Chief Executive grinned at the mighty displays of military power. It definitely was "The President's Day" at this huge Army post.

From the time he landed at Lawson Air Base shortly after 10 it was an almost continuous movement for the apparently tireless chief executive.

After a quick greeting at the airfield, President Truman was whisked rapidly to the reviewing ground where he watched approximately 4,500 troops of the Third Division parade in review.

After the review Pfc. David Heald, attached to the Third Infantry Division, and a fellow townsman of the President at Independence, Mo., presented the Chief Executive with a book, The History of the Third Division.

The President was also given a small scale model of the Army's Gen. Patton tank.

"I do appreciate the tank," the President said. "I am working and hoping for the day when all tanks will be like this one—to be used for peaceful purposes only."

"I'll keep it on my desk in the White House," he said, "until some visitor takes it, and then I'll ask

Russia, Spurning Plane Protest, Says B-29 Tried To Film Defenses

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Soviet Union rejected yesterday, in every particular, an American protest that Russian fighter planes shot down an unarmed Navy bomber over the Baltic Sea April 8.

This was the second blow of the day for the Russians in their stepped up cold war offensive. Earlier the Soviet Union had demanded that Britain and the United States withdraw their troops from Trieste.

The United States got in one counterblow at a Soviet satellite and ordered Communist Czechoslovakia to close its consulate general in Chicago by May 1. This was in direct retaliation for a Czech order shutting the libraries of the U. S. information service in Prague and the U. S. Consul General in Bratislava.

In a note handed to the U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk in Moscow, the Soviet Union insisted that an American plane fired at by Soviet fighters was a "B-29 flying fortress" trying to "photograph Soviet defense installations."

The Soviets turned down an American demand for compensation in the case of the U. S. Navy privateer which disappeared April 8 with 10 men aboard.

The Russians say on that day its fighters exchanged shots with an American plane near Lepaya, Latvia, and that the U. S. plane turned back over the Baltic and disappeared. Yesterday they said it definitely was a B-29.

Yesterday's note said the Russians were defending their territory and would continue to do so. This was an obvious warning to any U. S. planes which might fly over Soviet-controlled territory.

Meanwhile in Washington, Secretary of State Acheson denounced Russia's charges that the U. S. is violating the Italian peace treaty on Trieste. He said Russia was trying to stir up trouble in several critical areas of the world and the situation is serious. However, he added, he does not see the East and West moving into war.

As he spoke, the Capital resounded with angry words on the Soviet situation, and there were demands from many sides for "strong action."

Chairman Carl Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the House Armed Services Committee, demanded in a floor speech that this country "maintain sufficient armed forces to insure Russian respect."

Vinson spoke as the House passed, 330 to 0, a resolution calling for decorations for the 10 airmen lost in the Baltic Sea plane incident.

In the Orient, a shattering defeat of the five-day-old Communist invasion of Hainan Island was claimed by the Chinese Nationalists.

Nationalist accounts said more than 6,000 Reds surrendered and 2,000 to 4,000 were killed in all-night battles that ended at dawn yesterday.

Accounts by the official Central News Agency and the Central Daily News were supported in part by a naval communique which listed 4,000 Reds captured.

In addition, the Navy announced it smashed a Red attempt to push reinforcements onto Hainan, sinking more than 40 Communist junks.

The Nationalists repeatedly have alleged that Russian advisers helped the Communists plan the invasion which began Monday. They claimed two Russian prisoners were taken.

Scene of the greatest Red defeat was placed by Central News at the villages of Fushan and Meijen, about 25 miles southwest of Hoihow.

18-Day Leopold Tenure Ok'd by Catholic Party

BRUSSELS—(UP)—The Social Christian (Catholic) Party yesterday ratified a compromise agreement which will permit exiled King Leopold III to remount his throne for 18 days, then leave Belgium on a "long trip" abroad.

The Liberal Party will consider the compromise today. But the Socialists, most adamant opponents of the King's return, cannot make up their minds.

Cobb Hospital Authority Plagued With Dissension

Sharp differences between medical men of Cobb County and the Hospital Authority which will administer the new Kennestone Hospital at Marietta are in the open today after the resignation of two officials.

Dr. Ralph Fowler, Marietta pediatrician who quit as staff vice president, and Dr. W. C. Mitchell, of Smyrna, who stepped down as secretary, have told associates they resigned because they believed the doctors should select their own staff officers.

But Dr. Mayes Gober, prominent Marietta surgeon, who had been expected by his associates to step down as President, failed to resign and has indicated to the Authority he will retain the post until his term of office expires next year.

All three doctors were appointed by the Authority a month ago.

The by-laws of Kennestone Hospital, which is expected to open June 1, give the Authority the right to appoint staff officers if 80 percent of the staff members fail to elect their own officers within a specified period. The doctors did not have a quorum when they called a meeting for the election, and the Authority went ahead and appointed the doctors.

One Marietta doctor explained the sentiments of the medical profession:

"It's a question of whether our staff members are to represent us or serve as stooges for the Authority."

The eight-man Hospital Authority, which was appointed by Marietta City Hospital, has as its head an insurance executive, Clarence Worley. Other members are Mrs. W. P. Lemon, housewife; A. D. Little, another insurance executive; W. L. Harris, commercial printer and one-time publisher of the Marietta Daily Journal; W. E. McKinney, Firestone dealer in Marietta; Frank Owenby, manufacturer; George McMillan, former County Commissioner, and Henry Dunphey, representative of the Federal Communications Commission here.

ACTH OUTPUT IS INCREASING

CHICAGO — (AP) — The output of Acth, the super-scarce wonder hormone, has jumped so sharply that "a large number of hospitals" may be supplied in a few months to treat their most critical cases.

This report was given yesterday by F. W. Specht, President of Armour and Company, the nation's largest producer of the hormone from hog glands.

"I believe I can say that Armour and Company can produce Acth during the next several months as fast as people in the clinics and hospitals can learn to use it safely," he said.

Club Officers

Other officers elected were Wilson B. Wilkes, First Vice President; the Rev. Joe V. Cook, Second Vice President; C. C. Patten, Secretary-Treasurer; H. D. Wright, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer.

DREWRY TRIAL

wife and said, "These people ask nothing from you, nothing from me except that they be allowed to live in peace and security. They are entitled to that."

He asked the jury to disregard personalities and to try the first Mrs. Drewry as if "she were the raggedest person in town."

The capacity crowd, back for more sensation-flavored charges of the type made by Mrs. Kathleen Drewry earlier, was restive during the comparatively dull legal arguments which opened the day's session. But when Defense Attorney Brown put down the last law book and lit into a spicy summation of the evidence, the audience came to life.

"John, the kiss-thrower," jeered the rotund Clarke County attorney. "John, the Judas."

Facing the tense, bespectacled Journalism School Dean and his tall bride, but talking out of the corner of his mouth at the jury, Brown called the first Mrs. Drewry "a wronged woman." He called the Dean everything from a coward, who wouldn't sacrifice his life under fire for his intended wife, to "the most accomplished rake in America" and a man the U. S. State Department might borrow from the University of Georgia "and send to Sodom and Gomorrah to do research work."

If Mrs. Kathleen Drewry fired five shots into Drewry and the former Miss Miriam Thurmond the night of Dec. 23, because she believed they were doing something improper, she was, as Drewry's common-law wife, justified, Brown declared. If she, as the present Mrs. Drewry testified, "only imagined something was fixing to go on," then she was suffering from delusional insanity, the defense attorney argued. In either case the first Mrs. Drewry is entitled to an acquittal, Brown maintained.

"He sent her to a mental institution and now he wants to send her to the penitentiary to get her out of the way," Brown declared. "I want a verdict of not guilty. I want an acquittal for she was a wronged woman."

The man Mrs. Kathleen Drewry previously had called "a self-crowned intellectual, a selfish, arrogant philanderer," played to the gallery of the press when he began testifying, Brown said. He said the Dean would make a statement and then look at the six newspaper and wire service reporters on the front row and smile "as if to say, did you get that, boys?"

"But when Mrs. Kathleen Drewry started taking the wind out of his sails he didn't look at the press any more," the attorney said. "Why she ever wanted him I can't understand. Why Miriam wanted him either, I can't understand."

He quoted the Dean as saying, the first Mrs. Drewry forced his attentions by threats. Rearing back, the attorney studied the Dean thoughtfully.

"He says Kathleen threatened him,'" Brown said softly. "Why, you know that's a fib. That's a fib."

A wave of laughter swept over the audience and the balcony of the little white courtroom creaked perilously. Brown continued to stare at Dean Drewry.

"John was afraid of her," he went on. "John's a coward. I know he's a coward. Or else why didn't he give his life for that girl he married? Why if I'd been there with a girl I meant to marry and somebody came in shooting, do you think I wouldn't have put myself in front of her and tried to protect her? I don't think he intended to marry her. He wasn't engaged to her at that time. He didn't protect her. Lord, what a coward."

He quoted Drewry as "denying the spirit and the implications" of the first Mrs. Drewry's 42-page unsworn statement.

"I don't know what he means by the spirit but I know what he means by the implications," Brown said. He cited 20 statements Mrs. Kathleen Drewry made which, he said, her former husband did not deny, most of them revolving around their plans to remarry. He said the Dean did deny that he kissed Mrs. Kathleen Drewry 'ardently" the night before the shooting but admitted that he kissed her.

"Ardently or not, it was a kiss—and the way he was going it was just a routine matter with John," Brown went on. He accused Drewry of having "brought the agony of this trial" and added that he was bringing agony "to that woman that sits by his side and to her mother."

The first Mrs. Drewry sat bareheaded between her attorneys, Brown and Carlisle Cobb. She was wearing a gray suit with a soft blue sweater to match the blue of her eyes which, in her statement, she quoted her husband as saying were very like the present Mrs. Drewry's eyes. The former Miss Thurmond, who Mrs. Kathleen Drewry called "riff raff, scum, posing as a religious woman who wear a halo like a neon sign," wore a close-fitting felt hat, a gray topcoat, patent leather pumps and an interested but detached expression.

The first Mrs. Drewry's mother, Mrs. M. H. Merry and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dicks, of Augusta, sat beside the Drewrys' 18-year-old son at one end of the defense table.

Many people in Athens had heard that Mrs. Kathleen Drewry, author of a confession story 20 years ago, had written the 42-page statement which she read to the jury and they came in great numbers for the reading. She called her former husband a "Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde personality" and charged that "he loved the appearance of being a martyr and forbearing with his poor, sick-minded wife." In conclusion, she said: "I acted under an undeniable compulsion to end our tangled triangle of love and hate, vulgarity, greed and passion. I know, others know and God knows that they are the real criminals. They are the murderers just as surely as if they had cut my throat. Cutting my heart out, ruining my life may not be a legal crime but by the laws of God and plain human morality, it is the blackest of crimes and sins.

"Now if you see fit to punish me and my child further I'm prepared. Nothing matters any more. I'm finished."

Rent Lift Would Gouge Millions, Truman Says

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman said yesterday that millions would suffer serious hardship if Federal rent controls die June 30 as scheduled.

He appealed to Congress for a year's extension of the law to head off "a wave of exorbitant rent increases" which he said would surely follow a sudden lifting of rent controls.

Families earning less than $40 a week would be hardest hit, the Truman message said—many lines of business would be affected, relief costs would rise and pensions for the aged be less adequate.

The appeal preceded the opening of public hearings on the issue. The Senate Banking Committee will begin five full days of hearings Monday. The House Banking Committee has none set.

A few weeks ago, Congress slashed a rent office request for emergency operating funds from $3,600,000 to $1,400,000 — then tossed in $2,600,000 to be used only for discharge pay of employees.

This action threw a shadow across the agency's future when the question of continuing controls comes up, perhaps next month.

Flat expansion of the present law has been proposed, but its prospects look so thin to some Democratic aides that compromise ideas have sprung up. These involve giving the cities a deciding vote on retaining their own ceilings.

The main pressure for continuance of Federal authority is from big city legislators.

The presidential message said 8,000,000 rental units in 40 states still will be under Federal control on June 30, including 63 of the 92 cities with populations over 100,000.

Mr. Truman said it is significant that all the 63 large cities to which he refererd have had the option to remove controls but chose to keep them.

A large light globe crashing from the high ceiling to the marble lobby floor sent numerous Fulton Courthouse visitors scampering for safety.

Comment from lobby worker: "Thought sure it was a flying saucer."

Burke Loses Round in Fight To Dodge Jail

One-time Columbian leader, Emory Burke, has lost the first round of a fight to keep from serving his three-year jail sentence.

U. S. District Judge Frank A. Hooper dismissed Burke's injunction suit against Sol. Gen. Paul Webb, Fulton County Sheriff Bud Foster, Clerk J. W. Simmons, and Director R. E. Warren, of the State Department of Corrections.

Burke, a Homer Loomis associate convicted with other Columbians of patrolling Atlanta streets and terrorizing Negroes under the guise of City police officers or sheriff's deputies, had forfeited bond earlier this week.

Judge Hooper, following a hearing on a dismissal motion by Carl Copeland, of the Solicitor General's office, dismissed Burke's suit without prejudice. The jurist said attorneys for Burke had not exhausted State courts resources and had "not taken the right road in their appeal to the Federal Court."

Atty. James Venable, defending Burke, announced the ex-Columbian would give himself up to State authorities and then file a habeas corpus action in Federal Court.

Burke was not present at the hearing, and Sheriff Bud Foster said he "had not been apprehended," although a warrant for his arrest was sworn out Thursday.

Woodward Seen As Ambassador To Canada

WASHINGTON—(AP) — President Truman was reported yesterday to have chosen Stanley Woodward, a close friend and State Department official, as the new Ambassador to Canada.

Woodward, 51, is chief of protocol in the Department. His job requires him to welcome officially visiting dignitaries and lay down rules for entertaining diplomats. He has been with the Department about 20 years.

As Ambassador, he would succeed the late Laurence A. Steinhardt who was killed in an air crash March 28 near Ottawa.

Renovated Library Ready About Oct. 1, Is Prediction

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Completion of the $1,000,000 extension and renovation of the main library is expected about Oct. 1, Milton Farris, Chairman of the Library Board, announced.

Farris says the board has decided to replace walls and ceiling in the old portion of the structure with new plaster at a cost of $36,000 and that the opening date for the completed structure has been pushed forward.

He also asserted that William J. Creighton, Architect, and John Settelmayer, Librarian, have reached a compromise on interior finishing. Under the agreement Creighton will get a plastic type wall finish, but Settelmayer will select the color to be used. The pair had disagreed over the finish.

"The disagreement was simply a difference of opinion," Farris said.

Gore-Booth, Director of the British Information Service in the United States, and lunched with Robert L. MacDougall, contractor. The Mayor has begun signing his name another 745 times to validate $745,000 worth of waterworks revenue certificates. The proceeds will be used for waterworks expansion.

Explosion Series Rocks Dayton

DAYTON—(AP)—Three more unexplained explosions rocked the area just east of Dayton yesterday, 24 hours after the first blast spawned hundreds of rumors and telephone calls.

No one seemed to know where the explosions originated.

Several persons who telephoned Dayton newspapers said the blasts came from the vicinity of the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base between Dayton and nearby Fairborn.

But officials of the Air Force engineering installation denied any knowledge of the mystery explosions.

Henri Spaak said he was not certain the compromise will be acceptable to his party.

Under the tentative agreement worked out by negotiators from all three parties, Leopold would return to Belgium from exile in Switzerland the day after a joint session of Parliament repealed the 1945 law barring him from the throne. He would rule for 18 days, then transfer his royal powers to his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin.

Leopold then would take up residence on some royal estate in Belgium's provinces, but would leave almost immediately on a "long trip" outside the country.

College Park Attorney Runs Against Walton

A 30-year-old College Park attorney has become a legislative candidate in Fulton County's June 28 primary to oppose Rep. Jesse Walton, incumbent seeking re-election.

Morris Hearn, of 1258 North Main St., yesterday posted the $250 entrance fee with Atty. Neill Leach, Secretary of the party's executive committee.

He became the second candidate qualified in opposition to incumbent members of the Georgia House of Representatives.

Previously, Atty. Richard A. Thibadeau began actively seeking the post held by Rep. Luther Alverson. Alverson is regarded as a potential candidate for re-election.

Hearn is a practicing lawyer and graduate of North Georgia College, University of Georgia and the Atlanta Law School. He holds three Purple Hearts and was awarded the Silver Star for heroism during his five years service in the wartime army.

Two Escapees Caught in Ohio

Two of the four convicts who fled from a Coffee County prison camp Monday were recaptured yesterday in Springfield, Ohio, Assitant State Director of Corrections J. B. Hatchett reported.

Frank Bennett, 21, serving four to five years for auto larceny from Fulton County, and Elmer Lewis Fisher, 19, serving two to five years for burglary in Houston and Bibb Counties, were the two arrested, Hatchett said he was informed by the Springfield Detective Chief.

The two were in possession of an automobile, which Georgia State Patrolmen said was stolen from Douglas Tuesday.

James Henry Young, ex-Army corporal from Ararat, Va., and Fort Benning, who was serving a life term for slaying J. C. Durden, piano tuner of Columbus and Atlanta, previously was captured at Waycross. Still sought by police was Estill Turner, given a life term for robbery at Columbus.

Boy, 6, Burned By Yard Blaze

Six-year-old Lester Maddox, Jr., of 391 Fourteenth St., N. W., today was recovering at Crawford W. Long Hospital from burns suffered when his clothing caught fire.

Delores Rose, Negro maid, of 101 Hilliard St., N. E., said she overheard a noise at the back door of the Fourteenth Street residence and discovered the child with his clothing on fire. She extinguished the flames with a blanket and called for help.

Lester told Pfl. G. E. Wallace and C. W. Rogers he was "watching" a fire in the back yard.

$250 Million Tax Cut Set For Luxuries

Committee Slash Surpasses Truman's

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, still cutting deeper than President Truman desires, voted yesterday to trim $250,000,000 in Federal excise taxes from furs, jewelry, cosmetics and other items.

The action brought to $335,000,000 the amount which the committee has voted to reduce excise taxes in the past two days. The President asked for a reduction of only $190,000,000 on these particular items.

Yesterday's action was on consumer taxes—those paid directly by the buyer—on jewelry, furs, luggage and toilet preparations. The group also tentatively cut some manufacturers' taxes—which are passed along to the consumer in higher prices.

The committee voted yesterday to:

Cut the present 20 percent, jewelry tax to 10 percent, and lift it entirely from watches costing less than $65 and alarm clocks costing less than $5.

Halve the 20 percent tax on furs and most toilet preparations, such as perfumes and shaving lotions.

Lift the tax entirely from standard baby toilet preparations, such as oils, powder and lotions.

Abolish the tax on women's handbags and purses, men's billfolds and wallets and similar goods.

Retain the present 20 percent tax on luggage such as suitcases, trunks and brief cases.

Toilet preparations used in barber and beauty shops would be tax-free, but would be taxed 10 percent if the shops retail them.

On manufacturers' taxes the committee: kept the tax on matches of two cents per thousand.

Retained the 10 percent tax on radios, records, phonographs and accessories, but reduced from 10 to 5 percent the tax on musical instruments.

Put a 10 percent tax on cameras, which had been 25 percent, and on film and photographic plates, which had been 15 percent.

Trimmed the tax on household refrigerators from 10 to seven percent, and added deep-freeze units to the 7 percent list. Left a 10 percent tax on commercial refrigerators and all types of air conditioning units.

Lifted the 10 percent sporting goods tax from children's athletic equipment.

Courts 'Reopen' In Chattooga, Walker Counties

Chattooga and Walker Counties have Superior Courts again today, after a legislative mixup resulted in the closing for several weeks.

The Georgia Court of Appeals has instructed Floyd Circuit Judge H. E. Nichols to continue serving these two Counties until a new judge for the newly-created Lookout Mountain Circuit takes office next January.

When the Legislature passed a bill taking the two Counties from the Floyd Circuit and forming the new Lookout Mountain Circuit effective immediately, Nichols ruled he was without jurisdiction. Since the new judge is not to be elected until this Summer, the two Counties were left without a judge. A test case (Sellers versus the City of Summerville) was sent to the Court of Appeals, and the appeal-late court returned it to the jurisdiction of Judge Nichols. It said Nichols should preside over the two courts until a new judge takes office.

Ex-Atlantan Injured in Italy

Mrs. Walter Resce, former International News Service writer in Atlanta, has been moved to a convalescent home and her husband discharged from a Rome, Italy, hospital to which they were admitted Thursday after a boating accident on the Tiber River.

News of the improved condition of the couple was phoned by the State Department to Mrs. Charles R. Howell, of 185 Westminister Dr., N. E., a sister of Mrs. Resce and a teacher at Clark Howell School.

The Resces earlier were reported in serious condition after being fished out of the water.

Mrs. Resce, the former Miss Ruth Dye Brigham, worked for INS here prior to her marriage. She and her husband, a photographer for Rainbow Picture Co., have been in Italy since February and are scheduled to return to their present home in Miami, Fla., in August.

The discussion concerns wages, working conditions and a pension plan. It was indicated that the negotiations will continue into next week.

Normal Planting Seen Even With Acreage Cuts For Two Crops in 1950

By STILES A. MARTIN
Constitution State Editor

As the Georgia farmers "pitch" their 1950 crops and with a cut in the acreage of two, cotton and peanuts, indications are that there are still enough acres in and out of Government control to produce normal yields in the State.

The Production and Marketing Administration report shows that there are acreage allotments this year on three crops: Cotton, peanuts and tobacco. There is a reduction in cotton and peanut acreage and a slight increase in tobacco, compared with 1949.

The Cotton allotment is 1,410,752 acres, compared with 1,550,000 harvested in 1949. The peanut allotment is 701,256 acres, compared with 830,000 in 1949. The tobacco allotment is 98,296 acres, compared with 93,000 last year—a gain of 5,000 acres.

Stiles Martin

The Government allotments for the three crops totals 2,210,304 acres. The 1949 corn acreage was 3,300,000. So, the acreage for these four crops totals 5,510,00, which leaves approximately 2,100,000 acres for all other crops in 1950.

The total acreage for all crops grown in 1949 was 7,872,220, according to the Crop Reporting Service, Athens.

With the cotton acreage cut about 140,000 (but no limit on production), and about 130,000 cut in the peanut acreage, it appears that this year's total acreage will likely be around 7,600,000—a cut of about 260,000 acres from 1949.

The Government acreage allotments by counties for the three crops for 1950, with fractions of acres omitted, follow:

'PUTS ALL EGGS IN ONE BASKET'

Poultry Profits Pay Off at Homer

By SAM CLARKE
Constitution Staff Writer

HOMER—A World War II veteran farmer who last year was Banks county Corn Contest winner today is "putting all of his eggs in one basket" and pulling out poultry profits galore. The veteran said proper training pays off in farming.

William Purcell does his farming in the Davis Academy community of Banks County and gives credit for much of his success to the on-the-farm training program of the State Education Department's Vocational Division.

"I probably would not have been able to successfully 'get down to earth' if it hadn't been for a well-organized farm program," the youthful farmer declared.

A member of the farm training class at the Davis Academy School, Purcell was taught by M. T. Whitlow.

William Purcell

Purcell got into the poultry business shortly after he bought an old ginhouse and lot adjoining his property. He salvaged lumber from the old structure to build two laying houses, and put a pump in the well to furnish plenty of water.

"Sure, I'm pleased with the $1.50 per hen I can clear during the year if my layers stay healthy and egg prices are steady," Purcell explained, "but I also want to stress the importance of fertilizer in the poultry business. My flock has saved me a considerable amount of money in this respect," he added.

This by-product from his 1,000 White Leghorn layers is important in Purcell's plans for rebuilding the fertility of his fields. He says it's cheap and it's just about as good fertilizer as he could buy.

Purcell buys sexed chicks and keeps each set from 10 to 12 months, depending on how well the egg price holds up. During the five to seven months when the hens are laying, he figures that he's making money as long as production averages 60 percent or better.

"You have to keep down colds and other diseases to keep production that high," he observed. His farm training has helped him to combat diseases in his flock.

The Banks County veteran produced 97 bushels on an acre of corn to win the county contest last year. In 1948 he made four tons of pimientos on acre.

He believes it's good business to use plenty of fertilizer and get bigger yields per acre, especially when the only expense is the cost of spreading it over the land.

Burn Off Fescue For Better Clover

SATURDAY, APRIL 22, 1950

Suggestion of the day: The bream have been biting this past week. Maybe this will be a good day. A little fishing now and then is welcomed by the best of men. Helps get a feller over the bumps.

TODAY'S MAIL

Thurman Scott, of Thomasville, writes: "Regarding your article on discing fescue grass to get a stand of clover, have you ever considered burning off? We did, by accident, and you can tell where the field was burned and where it wasn't. The burned part has plenty of clover, the unburned part has little clover. We lost humus because of the fire but will get more from the clover and a net over-all gain." (Scott is speaking of crimson clover.)

R. C. Singletary, Jr., of Blakely, is beginning to believe that fescue grass alone might be the best answer to early Winter grazing. He writes: "Our method would be to control grazing so that all of the August and September growth would be left until frost (early November) and then grazed until February when the clover would be available. Also, it might be a good practice to plant fescue in 20-inch rows and introduce clover in the middles during the second year." (Fred Wilson, of Duluth, follows this latter practice in bottomland fescue and it works fine. As for relying on fescue grass for the first three months of Winter, there is nothing more dependable.)

A pound of Garbanzo bean seeds arrived from California. Hope they will grow here. Jim Davidson writes from Cleveland: "The Twentieth Century-Fox movie people arrive May 15 and will make headquarters at the De Luxe cottages here." Tom Galloway, of SCS, sends along the annual report of the Upper Chattahoochee River Soil Conservation district. Lots of progress noted. Lederle sends word that "aureomycin," which contains the animal protein factor No. 5, has been known to increase weight in poultry and hogs up to 50 percent. The Forest Farmer reports that since Oct. 1 approximately 5,651 separate wildfires have swept more than 159,000 acres of Georgia forest land in protected counties alone. Dry weather and high winds are the cause. Kudzu continues to be the most popular subject in this week's mail. Requests for information came from Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma, California, New Jersey, Maryland and New Hampshire. (We had a piece on kudzu in the last issue of Farm Quarterly magazine.) Eugene Dixon, of Ellaville, wants to know if he can get a seed crop from first-year fescue. Some people do and some don't; it all depends on the local conditions, weather, fertilizer treatment, quality of seed, weed competition, etc. Given reasonable luck and with careful management, it can be done.

As ever,

Polk County Plans Face-Lifting of Farm

By RUBY CAMPBELL
Constitution State News Service

ROCKMART—Something new in the history of this section will take place Wednesday when friends of the Sarah Murphy Home for Negro Children, both white and Negro, will work side by side in a one-day rebuilding of the farm. A large portion of the foodstuffs for the children is grown on the farm.

The event will get under way at 10 a. m., with Dolph Williams, Polk County soil conservationist, in charge of operations.

Agricultural agencies and business leaders from over the county are co-operating in the project which will mark the beginning of a better day for the 48 children who have found a refuge in the home.

Heavy machinery will be provided by county implement dealers and funds for the day's operations have been donated by Cedartown and Rockmart friends.

W. D. Trippe, President of the Commercial Bank of Cedartown, is Chairman of the Planning Committee, and he announced that County Superintendent of Schools Kankakee Anderson, recently elected President of the Georgia Educational Association, will be the principal speaker. The afternoon program will be sparked by a concert by the Rockmart and Cedartown high school bands.

Plans are for the remaking of 170 acres of the farm. This will include a terracing demonstration, land preparation, followed by fertilizing and planting of sericea lespedeza. Food concessions will be in operation by the county 4-H Clubs, it is announced.

Supt. Anderson will speak on "Future Plans for the Home."

The orphanage started in 1931 through the sole efforts of Sara Murphy, daughter of an ex-slave and teacher in the Polk County schools.

The Home is located just off the highway to Atlanta, between Cedartown and Rockmart.

ALBANY—Open yo' mouf, boy—a new watermelon is coming up in Dougherty County.

It's the Congo watermelon developed by the United States Department of Agriculture, which will be planted in the County this Spring for the first time. Hoke Davis, Dougherty farmer, is planning to sow several acres of it.

The planting of the new melon in this area will be along the line of experiment, according to County Agent J. D. Davis, who believes it will do well on Dougherty soil. He described the Congo as a dark green melon with light green stripes, and with a bright pink flesh.

Corn Crop Gain Cited For State

Expert Tells How To Continue Progress

Constitution State News Service

ATHENS — Georgia farmers, who grew 1,000,000 fewer acres of corn in 1949 than in 1940 but produced 11,000,000 bushels more corn, were given some tips for producing still higher yields per acre today by E. D. Alexander, Georgia Extension Service agronomist.

Corn occupies 3,300,000 acres of Georgia's cropland, and this is one-third of the cropland in the State, Alexander pointed out, in calling attention to the importance of higher per acre yields.

In 1949, Georgians produced over 59,000,000 bushels of corn with a record yield of 18 bushels per acre. Since 1946 the average per acre corn yield has increased 33 percent and the 1949 yield was 70 percent higher than the 1925-46 average of 10.6 bushels per acre.

"In 1946 an enthusiastic campaign was started by the Agricultural Extension Service to increase corn production per acre and lower costs per bushel," Alexander continues. "Thousands of demonstrations carried out by farmers cooperating with county agents have played an important part in this campaign."

Alexander listed the following pointers as part of a program for producing higher yields this year:

Select land adapted to corn which is fertile and well drained. Land for corn should have a soil-improvement program including legumes in rotation. Australian peas, vetch, crimson clover and blue lupine are being used as Winter legumes.

For many years that species of the feathered tribe has sought out mail boxes without benefit of doors in which to build its nests.

PERRY—Hogs are going to provide an increasingly large share of the income on Ralph Tabor's 625-acre Houston County farm.

Years like 1949 when he made only half a crop of peaches have caused Ralph, co-owner of the Tabor Packing House, to begin to look around for another cash crop, and he believes hogs are the answer.

Last year he sold 118 porkers and this Spring has increased his herd from 11 brood sows to 23, all of them purebred Durocs. A convenient pasture arrangement is evidence of the careful planning which has gone along with this venture into the swine business.

Ralph now has eight pastures. Each of the rectangular plots is about two acres in size and fronts on the barnyard so feeding and watering is convenient. It is also possible to transfer the animals from one plot to another or to separate them without difficulty.

The former Future Farmer is putting 42 acres into pastures and other crops for hogging off. Two years ago he managed to have feed in the field for his hogs practically year-round by letting the animals hog off corn, peanuts, soybeans, and vetch and oats.

"Don't get the idea I'm abandoning peaches for hogs," Ralph cautions. Since his father died in 1946, he has planted 117 acres of new orchards. Right now he has a total of 225 acres but plans to clear out some of his older trees, thereby reducing his acreage as the young orchards come into production.

The Tabors are traditionally farmers. Ralph's father, A. W. Tabor, was a Master Farmer in 1929 and both of his older brothers—Floyd and Lewis—have already received similar recognition. To follow in their footsteps is Ralph's top ambition.

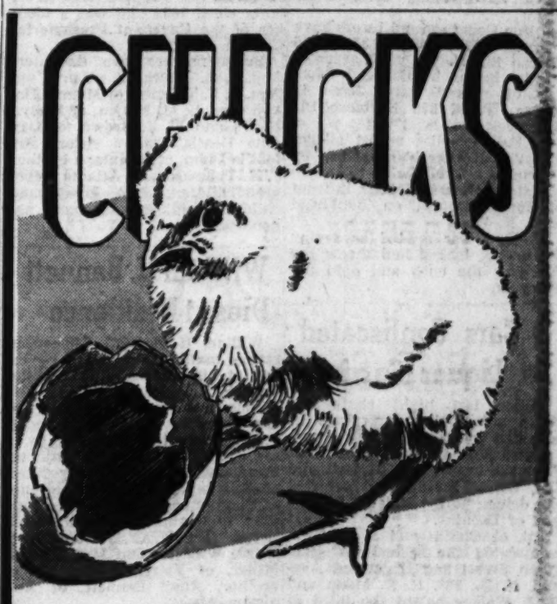

While in high school at Perry, Ralph studied vocational agriculture for four years and was a member of the Future Farmers of America. He rose to the top in FFA work, receiving the American Farmer degree in 1941, and serving his chapter as president and reporter.

Policeman Quits After Off-Duty Traffic Collision

Veteran Ptl. L. F. Preston yesterday resigned from the Police Department following a minor traffic collision, Chief Herbert Jenkins said.

Preston, off duty at the time, failed to stop his car after it struck a taxicab at Peachtree Street and Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E., Ptl. B. T. Coggins and H. G. Tuggle said. He later was booked for improper turn and accident and leaving the scene of an accident.

Samuel G. Stephens, of 120 Ashland Dr., N. E., told patrolmen he stopped his car for a red light at the intersection and the car was struck by an auto making a right turn into Peachtree. Stephens obtained the license number of the car and patrolmen said the car was identified as belonging to Preston.

Preston said he failed to stop because he considered the damage negligible. Coggins and Tuggle estimated damage to the taxi cab at $3.

A hearing of the charges is scheduled for 1:30 p. m. Tuesday in Recorder's Court.

the Army Secret Service to retrieve it."

The President said he "greatly enjoyed" the review.

Close on the heels of the review, the President and his party moved to a demonstration area where they witnessed an attack problem by a combined team of infantry, artillery, and tanks with air supports from a squadron of thunder jets.

"That was one of the finest demonstrations I've ever seen, and I've seen a lot of them," he said at its conclusion. He asked if there had "been any casualties" and was assured there had been none.

At a luncheon the President addressed the nation's business and educational leaders who have been on a three-day joint orientation conference at Fort Benning. He said he knew what they were doing and was proud "as an American citizen to see what is going on." Fort Benning was one of a series of armed service posts the leaders are visiting to study and better understand the problems facing the nation's defense.

He said, "I believe in preparedness to preserve our world leadership and we must maintain it to prevent a third world war."

"I am an optimist. I think I proved that in 1948," he told the group. "I do not believe we will have hostilities. I believe sanity is coming to the world."

The President was presented an infantry plaque displaying a bayonet on a blue field with the words, "Follow Me."

"Thank you," said the President. "I do appreciate this." Then in an afterthought he said "Maybe I'll put it on the back of my train and see if I can get some Republicans."

The final demonstration of the day was a display of all phases of the Infantry's firing equipment. Rifle, tank guns and field artillery was explained and fired.

The main "demonstration" of the afternoon came when the President moved "front and center" to give firing orders to a battery of 105-mm howitzers.

After giving the orders, the President, an artillery captain in World War I, explained:

"I want it understood I didn't work out this firing problem. It was worked out for me. I haven't worked an artillery problem since 1939. However, I still can do it if given the time," he added.

The President seemed to enjoy most the demonstration final—"the mad minute." All weapons of the infantry were fired simultaneously. The President stood and swept the entire firing range with his binoculars as he sought to "see everything."

After the demonstration the President returned to Lawson Field where he boarded his plane and headed for Eglin Field, Fla., where he will witness a display of aerial might by the Air Force today.

With the President on the tour was Sec. of Defense Louis Johnson, Sec. of Treasury, John W. Snyder; Atty. Gen. Howard McGrath; Sec. of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan and Sec. of Labor Maurice J. Tobin.

Among the top Armed Service chiefs was Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. Mark Clark and Adm. Forest Sherman.

Opening lead: Jack of diamonds.

West in today's hand was not concerned with salvaging a mere 30 points out of a possible wreck. He was more concerned with avoiding the wreck itself. In this he succeeded by keeping a stiff upper lip when the crucial moment arrived, recognizing that one trick does not beat a slam.

South reached a contract of six spades and when the dummy was spread, it appeared that he was an outstanding favorite to win. There were a number of chances open to him. The club jack might drop on the first, second or third round. If the club suit failed to oblige, there was still a chance of holding the losses in the heart suit to one trick.

South's leap to six spades, far from being brash, was in reality on the conservative side. He held considerably more than an opening bid, while partner had opened and jumped in a manner that suited his tastes. At least a fleeting thought should have been given to the possibilities of a grand slam which, indeed, would have been a cinch had North's hearts and diamonds been interchanged. As the hand was constituted, there was considerable duplication of values in the diamond suit.

The jack of diamonds was opened and taken by the ace. Trumps were drawn and declarer tried the heart play at once. Even after giving up a trick in this suit, declarer could still rely upon the hope that clubs would break favorably, or that a squeeze might develop.

While trumps were being drawn, West did some thinking. There were obviously no spade or diamond tricks for his side. South surely had the ace of clubs and possibly the queen as well. It appeared that the only hope was to take two heart tricks. When declarer led a heart, West promptly played low, South played the nine from dummy (clearly the best percentage play. It succeeds whenever the heart honors are split and West holds the 10). East won with the 10. From this point on, there was nothing declarer could do to bring in the hand.

It is argued that West might have lost his heart trick by playing low. The answer is, "What's 30 points more or less, when hundreds of points are involved?"

"Stop crying—isn't papa blowing you another one!"

Waynesboro Will Get State Farm Market

Constitution State News Service

WAYNESBORO—Tom Linder, Georgia's Commissioner of Agriculture, announced that a Farmers' Market to serve East Georgia at Waynesboro will be constructed soon.

Linder pointed out the strategic location of Waynesboro, in relation to traffic from Highways U. S. 1, 301 and Route 25, as well as favorable railway service in all directions.

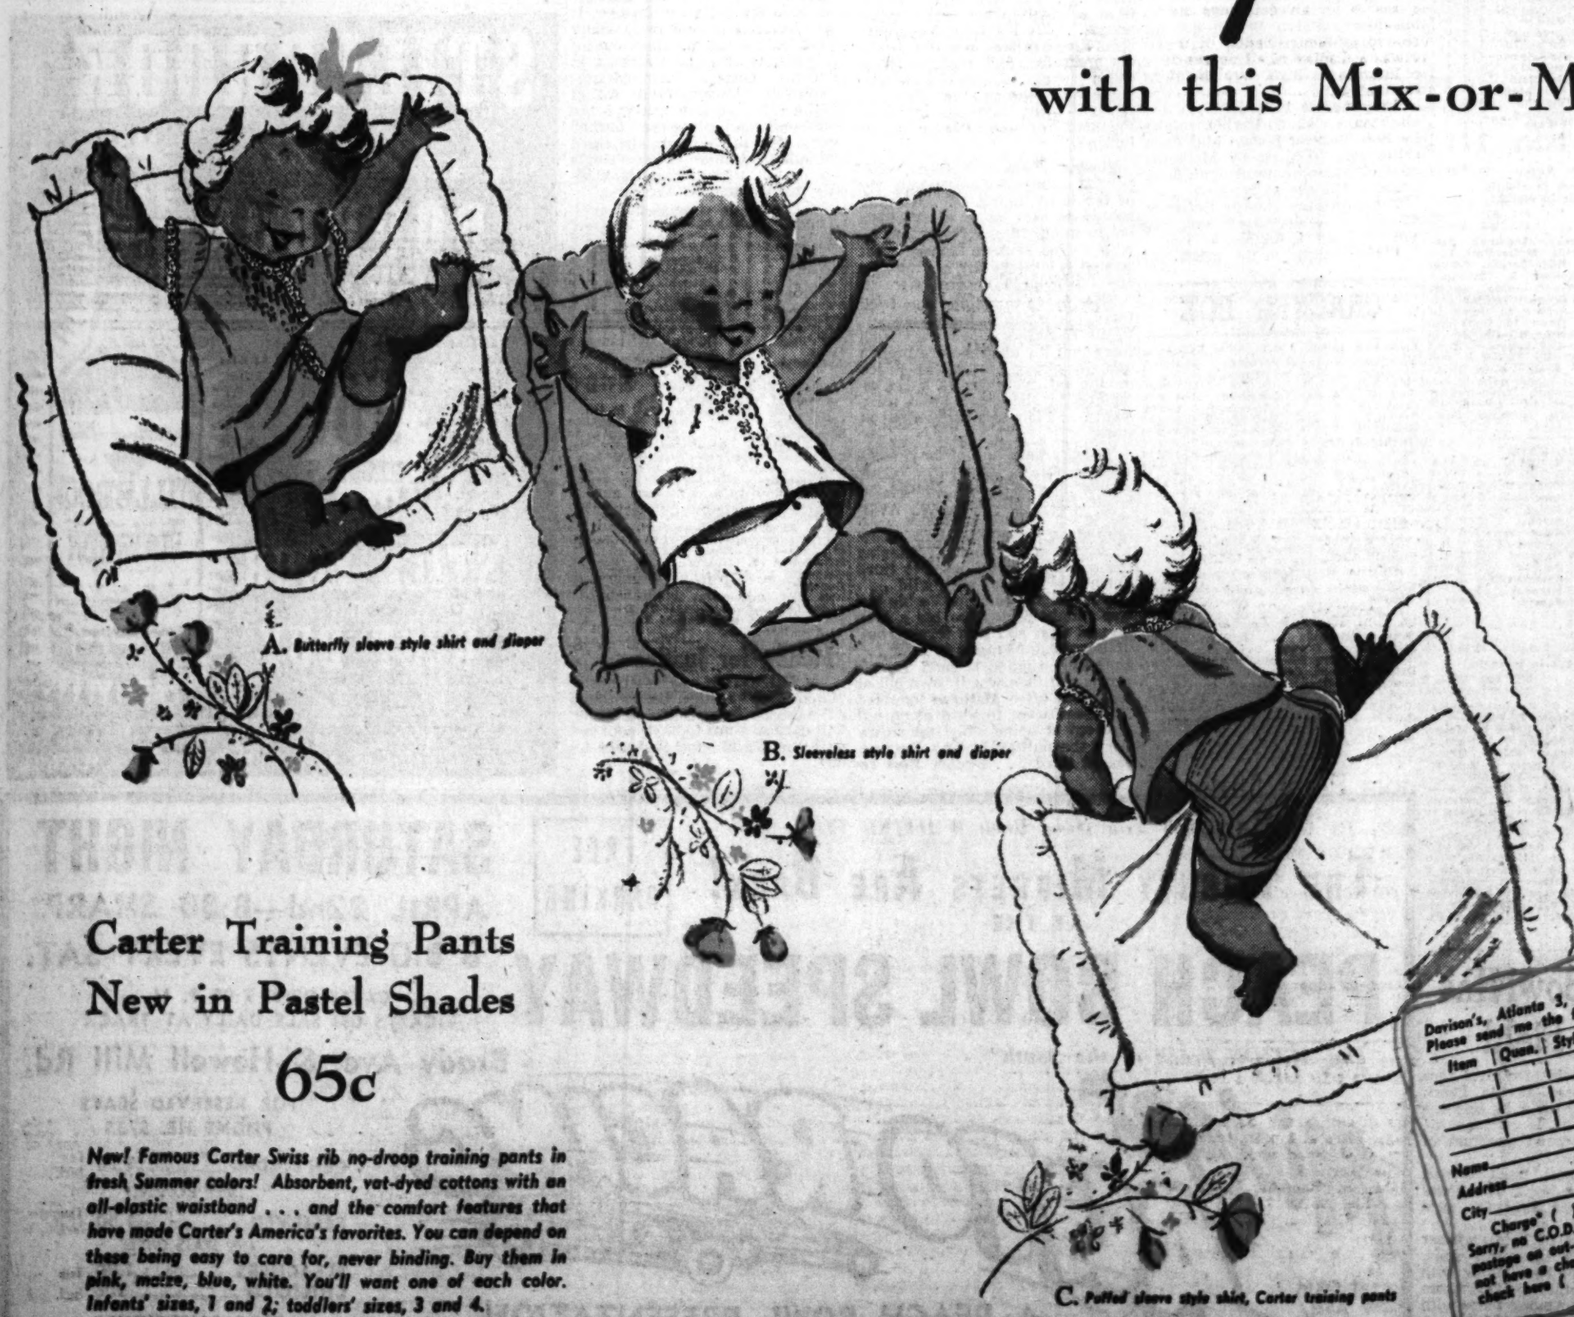

He said it is the purpose of his department to serve as great a number of farmers as possible with a market large enough to attract buyers from the entire eastern half of the country.

The Commissioner stated that he would have the shed, which will be approximately 60 feet by 300 feet, ready for this year's crops, and would add the cold storage and concession buildings next year.

The location at Waynesboro was selected by Linder in order to serve the greatest area around the eastern section of the State. He emphasized that every effort would be made by the Department of Agriculture to make it one of the best markets in the State.

It is expected that the Waynesboro market will compare with other State markets.

The Hall of Bobo

Tender, emotional, sentimental Bobo Newsom has one desire that outranks all others in intensity. Large Louie wants lustfully to belong to baseball's Hall of Fame, and for one fleeting moment yesterday I thought he had it made.

"I'll give $100 to anybody who can find a bartender alive who'll say he ever served me a drink of whiskey," Bobo offered without application of the spur. Either Bbo had gone around pumping hot lead into the barkeepers he had patronized, or else the guy was, contrary to legend, purse as the driven snow. In either case, he was Hall of Fame goods, even if, as Joe Engel has suggested, they should stuff and mount him.

Bobo's generous offer was a carry-over from a midnight tete-a-tete we had in Florida, at which time he was furiously courting the Washington Senators and publicly suspecting that he might wind up and pitch from a broadcast booth in St. Louis this Summer. Seems that the Browns had been considering him as Dizzy Dean's successor, largely because he speaks baseball but little English. The Senators, as it turned out, were very cold to Bobo's advances.

This particular night he was the most unusual Bobo I've ever known. For a time a cardiac organ replaced the dollar-sign that has functioned as his heart. He spoke and acted the part of a man who isn't, as generally charged, all buffoon, all braggart, all Bobo. You could almost imagine that the moistening of his eyes was emotionally inspired and not caused by the smoke that drifted up into his face. He had the Hall of Fame on his chest then.

Ah'm a-Goin', Podner "I guess that's what every ballplayer wants, Bo," he said, "but I think I got the record to make it. I'd like to get there before I die, too. I ain't the kind of guy that lives long. This old ticker of mine is just gonna lay down and quit one of these days soon. It's lived a hard life. I'm not kiddin' anybody, Bo. I know I'm about at the end of my pitching days. You fellers kid me about I could go on pitching forever, but I don't think I could last that long. I'm just about at the end now and I know it."

This, of course, is a message the world is not yet prepared to receive. Sounded as if Billy Graham had got to Bobo. Until he came at me again.

"But until I'm finished, I can go out and win for anybody. If I do say so myself, I'm still a helluva pitcher. This is the damndest arm you ever saw." And he patted the right limb that must be part rubber, part oak, part pig-iron and shot full of morphine. "I can still throw like I could 10 years ago, but it's time I let my head do the work.

"Don't get me wrong, Bo. I ain't nobody's fool. They used to write about my million-dollar arm and my 10-cent head, but them fellers that wrote that were jealous. I had the million dollars and they had the 10-cent heads." If there's an Internal Revenue man in the house, that's only a figure of speech. "They wasn't anybody around who could stand up to me when it come to dickering for contracts." And there'll be a chorus of loud amens ringing out across country from Los Angeles to Boston. "I had something to give 'em when I signed, and they knew they'd get the best I had."

At that time, Engel was waiting out Bobo, who was waiting out the Senators. In that period of uncertainty, Bobo had made one point clear—that if he pitched in the minor leagues this year he would pitch for Chattanooga. But he was bigtime in his heart.

"I druther pitch for Washington for peanuts than go to Chattanooga for $100,000. I'm that way. That's big league, Bo, and that's where I belong. I always did go first-class. A couple of Pacific Coast League clubs made me offers, but I won 30 games out there once and I'm gonna leave well enough alone. Besides, I promised Engel I'd pitch for him, and I never break my promises.

It's Love "I promised my mother that I'd never take a drink of whiskey, and to this day I've kept that promise. I drink my beer, but no whisky. I made that promise when I was going to prep school in South Carolina. I was home for some holidays and I made the promise one morning and my mom was killed that afternoon in a wreck between Darlington and Hartsville. How could ol' Bo break a promise like that?"

The texture of Bobo's fidelity was given its most severe test in the World Series of 1940, when as Detroit's ace in a losing fight against Cincinnati he was still the sentimental hero. On the morning of the day he was to start his second game, Bobo had been told that his father had died. He had gone down to a bar to do something he never would have done under normal circumstances. He had a beer before pitching, and friends tried to prevail upon him to pass up the game that day.

Bobo told them he'd signed with the Tigers to give them his all, "and I can't let Mr. Briggs down now." After which he went out and goose-egged the Reds on three hits. In appreciation for his loyalty, Bobo was asked to take a $20,000 pay cut the next Fall after a bad year, a gesture that caused his removal to Washington.

Still and all, I regard Bobo as a rather happy soul, in the minors, end of the line, whatever his grief may be. He seems to belong in Chattanooga with Joe Engel. They're sorta like Maggie and Jiggs, or Hansel and Gretel, or Louisville and Nashville. They were meant for each other.

Georgia Nine Rips Auburn Tigers, 11-1

By BILL STRUDEL
Constitution Sports Correspondent

ATHENS—After being momentarily sided by Clemson, Georgia's nine got back on the winning track here yesterday by licking Auburn, 11 to 1.

Ace Adams went all the way for the Bulldogs, while Auburn used three pitchers to no avail. Bill Letchworth, who successfully throttled the Georgians at Auburn until his support fell apart, started for the Tigers, and was credited with the loss. Hubert Finlayson, who relieved in the seventh, lasted only one and one-third frames, before being replaced by Ernie Snow.

The Tigers got away with a bang, scoring one in the first. Catcher Charley Gilbert hit to third after two were out, took second on a wild pitch, and scored on a single to left by first sacker Gene Hoehle.

Georgia didn't scratch until the third when they tied it up as Billy Grant lined a scorcher to center, took second on Letchworth's wild toss, and romped home when first baseman Hoehle muffed a throw from Letchworth trying to get Adams.

In the next frame the Bulldogs tallied four on hits by Paul Eskew, Jim Umbricht and Billy Henderson, an error by third baseman Dean, a walk, and another error by shortstop Logan. Eskew hurt his leg sliding home, and was replaced by Sonny Dykes.

Art Mitchell walked in the fifth, took second on Eason's single and third on Letchworth's balk. Jim Umbricht's second straight single brought Mitchell in.

Mitchell again walked to lead off the seventh. Eason sent him to second with another single and each advanced when Umbricht walked. Grant again came through to drive in both runners.

Not satisfied with a 8-1 lead, the 'Dogs came through with three in the eighth as Henderson hit between first and second and stole the next sack. Hokey Jackson took first when the Tiger first sacker froze immobile with the ball in his hand and both feet off the bag as Henderson went all the way home. Bagwell walked, advancing Jackson and Easton double to center, scoring both.

Eason's three or five, including a double was tops for the day, while no Plainsmen gathered more than one safety.

Mrs. Bass Wins Event At Capital City Club

Mrs. Marvin Bass won the first tournament of the season conducted by the newly-organized Ladies' Golf Association of the Capital City Club yesterday when she scored net 85 to take the blind bogey. Mrs. Lewis Sams took second with net 84 after tieing with two others and winning in the draw.

The first playday yesterday drew a fine field of some 25 golfers and another large turnout is anticipated for next Friday when a putts-to-count tournament is played.

Tigers Win Again; DiMag Hits Homer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Red Sox spoiled Connie Mack's 50th home opening as Manager of the Philadelphia Athletics by whipping the A's 8-2 yesterday at Shibe Park behind seven hit pitching of Lefty Maurice McDermott and the big bats of Vern Stephens and Al (Zeke) Zarilla.

Stephens hit a home run with the bases loaded in the ninth and Zarilla contributed three hits to Boston's ten hit total off Lou Brissie and Harry Byrd.

Brissie, the lefthanded starter who has had unusually good luck against the Red Sox, was touched for eight hits and four runs in the eight innings he worked.

The first A's run was a gift from McDermott who balked, permitting Bob Dillinger to stroll home from third base in the second inning.

The victory for the Sox, while spoiling "Connie Mack Day" for the A's, was a fitting present to Manager Joe McCarthy, who celebrated his 63rd birthday.

At Detroit, the unbeaten Tigers cashed in by a pair of homers as they opened their home season by beating the Chicago White Sox 4-1 before a chilled crowd of 44,642 fans.

The White Sox grabbed a one run lead in the fourth inning and hung on until Outfielder Johnny Groth tied the game at 1-all in the seventh with a 360-foot homer in the left centerfield bleachers.

The Tigers broke the game wide open in the bottom of the eighth as Vic Wertz tagged Pitcher Mickey Haefner for a three-run homer into the right field stands.

Detroit Pitcher Virgil Trucks, who gave up only five hits, opened that rally with a double. With two away, the White Sox elected to walk George Kell to get Wertz. The balding Tiger outfielder banged the 2-2 pitch for the four-bagger that broke up the ball game.

Joe DiMaggio hit his first home run of the season in the seventh inning with one on to snap a tie and the New York Yankees went on to crush the Washington Senators, 14-7, before 27,877 opening day fans at the Yankee Stadium.

Yogi Berra, Tommy Byrne and Tommy Henrich also homered for the Yanks and Eddie Robinson for Washington.

Peach Bowl Has Record Field

The largest field of midget race drivers to appear at the Peach Bowl Speedway since its opening last Summer will be on hand tonight for the second program of the 1950 season.

Roy Shoemaker, track owner, announced yesterday 32 chauffeurs have entered the six-event card opening at 8:30.

Pee Wee Long, of Tulsa, winner of this season's inaugural show last week, will be back, along with a number of other drivers from the Southwest. Among those with Long are Wild Bill Miller, a crowd's favorite last season, and Oscar Russell.

Lassalle Hurls Victory Despite Injury, Poor Aid

Larry Goes Route After Being Hit On Shoulder, Beating Lookouts 5-4

By F. M. WILLIAMS

Young Larry Lassalle fought down pain, poor support and an attack of slugging by the Chattanooga Lookouts to pitch and win his first professional baseball game last night, 5 to 4, on the strength of a pinch single in the ninth by Jim Rivera.

Lassalle was struck on his pitching shoulder by a line drive off the bat of Al Flair in the fourth inning and for a brief time it looked as though he'd have to leave the game. But he stayed in there to the bitter end, Manager Dixie Walker even letting him take his turn at bat in the ninth with the score tied 4-4.

Larry's teammates gave the Lookouts their first two runs, one on a passed ball by Ebba St. Claire and the other on an error by Ed Mathews, but the Lookouts solved his delivery in the eighth and ninth, getting four of their seven hits in the two innings.

They got one in the eighth on a single by Dick Guyton and Ellis Clary's triple but Gene Verble threw out George McDonald to end the inning. Then Lassalle got the first two in the ninth, only to hit Andy Fleitas, give up a double to Alex Driskill and an infield hit to Guyton that knotted the count.

Lefty Bob Ross throttled the Carckers for three innings but in the fourth Ralph Brown got his second of four singles and Ed Mathews poled his fourth homer of the season high over the right field signs.

They added two more in the sixth on a walk to Verble, singles by Bob Thorpe, Brown and Leon Culberson, followed by Mathews' double, but some unfortunate base running cut the rally short.

Then in the ninth Lallassee struck out to start the inning, but Verble lined a double to left.

Rivera came in to pinch hit for Thorpe and bounded a single through the box and that was the game. The ladies night crowd of 5,056 went home happy.

The Memphis Chicks move in tonight for the first of four games with Al Henencheck scheduled to work for the Crackers. Game time is 8:15.

SHORT NOTES—Ertman checked in about three hours before game time, explaining that he had been forced to take it easy en route from Milwaukee because he was driving his wife and baby to Atlanta . . . He said he left Tuesday morning . . . The stocky first sacker hit .323 and knocked in 22 home runs for Hartford, of the Eastern League, last season.

Happiest man on the Cracker team over Ertman's arrival was Country Brown . . . When Mgr. Walker told him he was going back to centerfield he wasted no time getting rid of his first-base equipment and grabbing his fielding glove. . . . It is kind of natural for George Diehl to be with Chattanooga . . . He played at Louisville with Fred Walters, now the Lookout manager, and went to New Orleans from Atlanta when Walters was piloting the Pels . . . George spent last season with Portland, of the Pacific Coast League.

Thorpe made a brilliant one-handed catch of Clary's long fly in the third inning. . . . Miranda booted an easy roller off Verble's bat in the third and then came up with a fine stop on Thorpe's hot grounder to atone for his mistake and retire the Crackers.

Flair drove in a line drive back through the box in the fourth . . . It hit Lassalle's glove with such force that the strings were broken and the young hurler was struck on the left shoulder . . . He remained in the game after treatment . . . Flair was thrown out at first.

The Crackers' half of the seventh was a weird inning . . . Verble walked to start it and Thorpe got a hit when Miranda was handcuffed by a hard grounder . . . Miranda tried a backward throw to second after finally retrieving the ball and Verble went to third when the throw was wild . . . Brown singled to score Verble but was caught taking too big a lead around first and was thrown out, McDonald to Miranda to Flair . . . Culberson singled to send Thorpe across and then was thrown out at the plate after Mathews doubled . . . Leon went to third okay, but was out at home when the throw from the outfield got by Harrington at third . . . Pitcher Ross retrieved it in time to make the play home . . . The Crackers wound up with only two runs on a walk, three singles and a double.

Again! Olson Homers As Barons Win

Karl Olson cracked his third home run in two nights to lead the Birmingham Barons to a decisive 10-4 victory over Little Rock last night at Birmingham.

Sharing the slugging honors along with Olson, who hit two circut-clouts against Atlanta Thursday night, was Red Lavigne who, also blasted a four-bagger. It was Lavigne's second in as many games as he too put one out of the park against the Crackers in their final game in Birmingham.

Nashville bumped Mobile, 5-1, at Mobile. The Vols, winner of the 1949 Southern League race, pushed over a pair of tallies in the third and eighth frames with a single run in the first inning. Mobile's only score came in the first.

Buddy Thompson Silences Commodores With Five Safeties

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Georgia Tech batted around twice in the second inning, scoring 14 runs, and went on to a 23-2 victory over Vanderbilt in a Southeastern Conference baseball game here yesterday.

The Yellow Jackets scored the 14 runs on nine hits, six Vanderbilt errors, two bases on balls and one batter hit by the pitcher. First Baseman Henry Schoening and Rightfielder Henry Childress each got two hits in the big inning. Schoening and Gene Sedberry each pounded a double in the slaughter.

Tech's Buddy Thompson was in fine form and set the Commodores down with five hits, including doubles by John Rich and Bob Dudley Smith. It was Thompson's third win against two losses for the season.

The Engineers scored once in the first and Vanderbilt tied the score before the Tech outburst. Earl Simmons, now with one win and three losses, left the mound after 10 runs had come in in the second.

Hugh Casey Denies Paternity Charge

Hugh Casey, former Brooklyn Dodger relief pitcher and now a member of the Atlanta Cracker mound staff, said yesterday he "knows nothing about" a charge by a young unmarried Brooklyn woman that he is the father of her son, born last November.

A warrant for Casey's appearance in court was signed in special sessions court in Brooklyn yesterday.

Hilda Weissman, 25, charged in a 12-page affidavit that Casey fathered her son, Michael, born last Nov. 2.

Contacted at his home here, where he has been recuperating from an attack of influenza, Casey said:

"I know nothing about the matter. Someone on one of the press services just called me and I just finished talking with the manager of my place in Brooklyn. I plan to talk with my New York attorney later on.

"I have seen Miss Weissman around my place of business and at the ball park a number of times but I have never been out with her socially."

Miss Weissman described herself as a rabid Dodger fan for 10 years. She declared she first became intimate with Casey in a Brooklyn hotel in January, 1949, and that there were several later trysts.

Casey said he was approached by an attorney when he was in New York last December and January, and told that he had a son in a home there.

"I told him I had no children and he said that I had a son in a home and that he was going to sue me for non-support.

"I told him that he'd better make sure of himself before suing me, that someone was going to get hurt in the matter. That was the last I heard of it until now."

Blum's 141 Tops Field In Dogwood Tourney

McCoy and Tommy Barnes Are Tied For Second Place With 143 Totals

By BERT PRATHER

Before the ninth annual Druid Hills Dogwood jamboree opened last Thursday it was pretty well agreed among the self-styled experts that the battle would be a fight to the finish between Defending Champion Tommy Barnes and cross-handed knocking Bob McCoy.

This prediction, up to the present time, doesn't seem to be too far out of line, except for one thing. The smart boys shouldn't have overlooked that always dangerous competititor from Macon—Mr. Arnold Blum.

As the tournament moves into the third round this afternoon, Mr. Blum is in the driver's seat with a 36-hole total of 69-72—141. Barnes, the Southern Amateur champion, who was two strokes back of the Idle Hour Country Club stylist at the end of the first round of play, held his own yesterday with an even par 72, but had to move over and share the runner-up spot with McCoy, whose one under 71 gave him a two-round tally of 143.

The remainder of the original championship field fell so far off the pace that it appears to be strictly a three-horse canter from here to the wire. Only Carling Dinkler, Jr., the Capital City Country Club star; Benny Goodes, of Reidsville, N. C.; Henry Wade and Gus Novotny, of Atlanta, have an outside chance of getting back into title consideration. Dinkler fired his second straight 74 yesterday to hold fourth place at 148. The other three are tied for fifth with 149s.

Blum showed no signs of faltering despite the fact he ran into two straight bogeys on six and seven. Arnold matched the card on the first four holes and then went one under with an eight-footer for a four on No. 5. On six he topped his second and overran the green, taking a five. At seven his tee shot apparently hung in the dogwood trees. He was never able to find the ball, costing him a two-stroke penalty. Arnold righted himself and finished the side in 37.

Arnold's luck improved on the back nine. He posted a birdie three at 14 with an eight-foot putt and a birdie four at 16 where he was on the fringe with a five iron second and down in two. Blum trapped his tee shot on the short fifteenth and went one over.

McCoy had a bogey five on the second hole, evened it with a deuce on eight and then collected another bird on the par five sixteenth. His 71 was one of two subpar rounds turned in yesterday. Gus Novotny checked in with the other, also a 71.

Barnes' main trouble came on the fifth where he took a double bogey. He atoned somewhat with an eagle three at nine for a front nine of 35, but could not balance the books on the home nine due to a pair of one over pars, one at 12 and the other at 17. A 10-foot putt fell for a birdie four at 16.

The championship flight was split into A and B divisions at the conclusion of yesterday's round, the dividing line being 156. The championship flighters shove off on their third 18 starting at 1 p. m. this afternoon.

Records Fall In City Meet

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

City League cinder scatterers broke more records than the town phonograph shop's butterfingered salesman with St. Vitus dance in the first high school track carnival ever held under the arc lights of Grady Stadium last night.

Perrin Walker's Grady Gray Knights stormed the ramparts to 10 first places to hand Bass' defending champions their first dual meet defeat in two years, 69-53, but it was Smith High's galaxy of speed merchants that had records falling like leaves in a late-Autumn windstorm.

Lloyd Kimmel's Smithies smashed three City League marks and tied another. A Brown representative sent one into oblivion, and a Roosevelt swiftie tied another.

Murphy's musclemen surged to a 78 2-3 to 43 1-3 triumph over O'Keefe to go into a first-place stalemate with vanquished Bass. Smith outsped Brown, 70-52, and Roosevelt nicked Decatur, 50-36, but in a three-way meeting it was North Fulton 79 1/2, Roosevelt 38 1/2 and Decatur 28.

Smith's Lawrence Warren was the swiftest of them all. He amassed 16 1/2 points to 14 1/2 for North Fulton's Ted Echols, the former winning the century in 10.5, tying the loop's 200 mark of 23 flat set in 1948 by Roosevelt's Bob Hornbuckle, breaking the broad-jump record of Bass' Newton Fowler (1949), with a leap of 20 feet, 6 1/2 inches, and running on the Smith relay team which set a new mark of 1:33.4. Bobby Odum, Leon Cunningham and Grady Waters were other relaymen who figured in bettering an old Brown high mark.

Carrollton's Success Hinges on Pitchers

Manager 'Shorty' Marshall Pleased With Team Material

Editor's note: This is another in the series of articles about Georgia-Alabama League baseball teams.

By JACK JACKSON
Constitution Sports Writer

CARROLLTON—The Carrollton Hornets, who dropped from the Georgia-Alabama League's top four last season for the first time in four years, are on the comeback trail, this time under the leadership of Herbert (Shorty) Marshall, the diminutive second baseman who sparkled so brilliantly for the locals in '46, '47 and '48.

Shorty, who makes up in hustle and plate power for what he lacks in size, returned here last Winter after a season with West Palm Beach, of the Florida International League.

As for this year's team, Shorty's chief complaint thus far has been the chilly weather which has held back most of the Georgia-Alabama League clubs. He's fairly well satisfied with the material, and sees no outstanding weaknesses, although he fully admits that he's unsure of his mound staff. "They just haven't had a chance to get in shape these cold days and nights," he says.

That pitching staff could easily be topped by southpaw Catayo Gonzalez, a veteran of Cuban extraction who toiled for Palatka and Tampa in Florida last season. Gonzalez, one of several Cubans on the Hornet roster, had one of the top rookie years in recent times a few seasons ago when he won 20 games in the Florida International.

Then there is Ed Bobowski, a right hander who divided his time between LaGrange and Carrollton last season. He and Frank Demaree, who posted a 9-10 record in the Colonial League, will team with Gonzalez as three of Marshall's starters, barring unforeseen developments. After that trio, rookies hold the key. On hand now are Jack Dennis, Gordon Woods, Mason Kelly, Ray Stiegle, Dan Bullington and Charlie Torbett. An added starter from that group would relieve the Hornet skipper considerably.

Carrollton has few worries behind the plate. Pat Patterson, a limited service receiver who has seen earlier action with the Hornets, and Reggie Corrales loom as the top pair, although rookie Duck Wiley is still around.

The infield is fairly well set. Bob Gehris, a rookie, is at first, with Marshall at second. Ray Clarke, who was with Valley last time, is the shortstop, and Fred Desouza the third baseman. Desouza leaves little to be desired afield, but his hitting could stand some improvement.

Two rookies and two old heads make up the outfield corps. Cliff Reach and Jim Morrelli were in the league last time, while Fred Lee and Fred Sala are the newcomers. At this writing, Reach, Morrelli and Lee seem to have the edge for starting posts.

The fiery Marshall may be the needed ingredient as Carrollton seeks to return to its place in the sun.

Brooklyn Runs Over New York

Campanella Hits Grand-Slammer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roy Companella's grand sclam home run paced a 14-hit Brooklyn attack as the National League champions opened their home season yesterday with an 8-1 trouncing of the forlorn New York Giants.

The big Negro catcher unloaded the bases in the third inning when he parked one of Dave Koslo's southpaw shots beyond the 390-foot mark in deep left center field.

Only 24,033 paid their way into the Ebbets Field inaugural, in which every Dodger except Pitcher Preacher Roe slammed at least one hit off three Giant flingers. Rookie Bob Morgan collected three, all singles.

At Chicago, Bob Rush outdueled Harry (The Cat) Brecheen to lead the Cubs to a 2-0 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals before 22,137 in their home opener. Although the Cardinals had a 4-3 edge in hits, triples by Hal Jeffcoat and Wayne Terwilliger both led to runs.

The Pittsburgh Pirates — with Ralph Kiner slugging his first 1950 homer and Wally Westlake his first two—beat the Cincinnati Reds, 7-5, before 32,685 paying fans at Pittsburgh. Danny Litwhiler and Bobby Usher hit round-trippers for the Reds.

An eight-inning thunderstorm broke off the Boston Braves' home opener in a 2-2 tie with the Phillies before a chilled 7,308 crowd.

GRANTLAND RICE

He Agrees 'Golf Is an 'Umblin' Game'

NEW YORK—As the Spring sun starts warming up, from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 golfers are again heading for trouble. This trouble consists of slicing, hooking, shanking, smothering, topping, schlaffing, stabbing, jabbing, and head lifting against a background of ponds, lakes, ditches, matted rough, trees, bushes, divots, sanded grottoes and heelprints.

The trip from the first tee to the 19th hole is an ever-changing adventure of joy and despair, song and sorrow.

"Golf," as Georgia Low told me years ago, "is an 'umblin' game." It is. It is a game more for a philosopher than for an athlete. Its mental side—meaning concentration—is the controlling factor. It is a game that demands both physical and mental rhythm to a high degree.

There are many things that call for concentration. Too many things—foot action, body action, hip action, hand and wrist action, head action. Naturally the duffer or average golfer starting his Spring play or practice can't think of all these baffling details.

Bob Jones told me once that he tried to think of only three things: The smooth pace of his backswing, not to rush the downswing, and correct head action or position. I believe these three things are about all the normal brain can carry at one time on a golf course.

If you check on the most common faults you'll find they come from the following: Poor foot action—which means lack of balance, leg and body tension—the tendency to rush the backswing and start the downswing too soon, and moving the head.

What to Think About

In taking his stance for practice or for play, the Spring golfer should eliminate, as far as he can, tension in feet and legs. In starting his backswing there are three things that need his concentration: To swing back smoothly, without hurry; to be sure the backswing is finished; to start the downswing without any rush and to keep his head fixed.

This doesn't seem to be too much of a mental burden. He should try to make these things habitual. But it isn't as easy as it sounds.

I recall many years ago sitting with Stu Maiden, Bobby Jones' instructor, watching Bob practice before a round. This was at Oakmont around 1919. Bob was then 17 years old. He was hitting every practice shot perfectly—far and straight.

"He looks great today," I said to Maiden.

"Yes," Maiden said, "on the practice tee. When he gets to the playing tee he'll increase the pace of his backswing 30 percent. He's slow back now, but he won't be slow back soon."

This is exactly what happened. At 17, Bob had the competitive urge of a football player, not the philosophy of a seasoned golfer. He was already brilliant at 17, but rarely consistent.

Four years later, at the ripe old age of 21, he found himself, leaving an eight-year record that is still the envy of every golfer in the world—13 national championships.

Riverside Tops GMA in Track And Baseball

GAINESVILLE—Riverside Military Academy handed the GMA Cadets a twin trouncing here yesterday afternoon with a 14-0 baseball victory and 81-41 track win.

Bob Leslie, senior righthander from Due West, S. C., handcuffed GMA on two hits and struck out 14. Leslie hurled a no-hit, 8-0 win over Darlington last week, in a Mid-South League contest.

Riverside's thin-clads racked up 10 first places. Alton Black, Sedgie Magee, and Bob Payne led the Riverside attack.

Your Host Wins at Keeneland

Condensed From AP, UP, INS Wire Reports

Your Host, toast of California racing patrons, established a new track record for seven furlongs in winning the Keeneland feature yesterday and sent his Derby stock soaring to a new high.

The son of Alibhai breezed to a six and half length victory over Mr. Trouble, which took place money, and was eleven lengths in front of fourth place Oil Capitol, Derby Winter book favorite. Your Host was clocked in 1:22 2/5, slicing two seconds off the old mark set by Seward last Fall. Calumet's Theory was third in a photo finish with Oil Capitol.

Meanwhile, the racing spotlight shifts to Jamaica today for the Wood Memorial in which Hill Prince and Middleground top a field of 12 starters. Both Hill Prince and Middleground rank highly among the nation's three-year-olds and today's test should give a line on how they will fare in the Derby, at least on the mutuel board.

At Tanforan, Calumet's Ponder, 1949 Derby winner, will seek to do something his fabulous stablemate Citation has never done—beat the Irish bred Noor.

THE ROUNDUP—Williard Nixon, former Auburn star from Lindale, fashioned a six-hitter against Toledo as Louisville carved out a 9-2 decision in an American Association game. . . . Luke Easter, rookie Negro Cleveland outfielder, was arrested for speeding at East Liverpool, Ohio, Thursday night. His explanation that he was hastening to Pittsburgh to pick up some bats failed to impress Mayor Harry Vincent who ordered a $25 bond.

Wynsel Spencer upset defending champion Frank Stranahan, 2-1, to gain the finals of the North and South Amateur golf championship. . . . At Virginia Beach, Jim Ferrier's quartet of professional stars won the $500 team match title in the Cavalier specialist tournament. Norm Van Nida, Ed Furgol and Jim Turnesa joined Ferrier on the winning team. . . . Joe Gould, who piloted Jimmy Braddock to the world's heavyweight boxing championship, died at his home in New York of leukemia at the age of 53. . . . Rip Engle, of Brown, is reported being "under consideration" for the Penn State football coaching job. . . . Leon Hart, Notre Dame's All-American end, flunked out in his screen test. Universal International studios announced that Hart "just didn't have acting possibilities. . . . The University of Florida will hold its annual Spring football game today. A track meet between Georgia and Florida is also on the agenda which includes a big barbecue.

Every day, new thousands are turning to the high quality, the elegant flavor of famous Bonded Old Forester—outstanding since 1870! Enjoy this finest of Kentucky whiskies yourself—today.

The Next Move Is Ours

Russian rejection of the United States protest against the shooting down of an unarmed Navy plane in the Baltic, and the murder of 10 of our men, was to be expected.

A nation which will shoot down a plane which cannot fight back, killing all on board so there will be no evidence of the crime, cannot be expected to assume the responsibility customarily expected of a civilized nation.

The speed with which the Soviet replied, and the curt manner of the note, emphasize the deterioration of relations between the two countries.

There is other evidence, too, that Russia is stepping up its campaign against this country. Satellite Czechoslovakia's ordering the American infomation service in Prague closed is only one instance. The Soviet demand that Allied troops get out of Trieste falls in the pattern. So does the declaration that Soviet fliers now have been ordered to shoot down any foreign planes that fly over Russian territory. This country now has retaliated, to a degree, against the Czechoslovak order by telling the Czechs to shut down their Chicago consulate by May 1. But there will remain Czech consulates at New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Though the State Department, perhaps rightly, seems to be going out of its way to handle each "incident" calmly and act only after studied consideration of each case, the public temper is quickening.

The unanimous Senate vote the other day for posthumous awards to the 10 fliers murdered by the Russians is a symptom of the change in attitude.

Most of us recall, only too vividly, the mistakes of appeasement. We remember that American soldiers and sailors at overseas stations were subjected to the arrogant jibes and jeers of Hitler's "supermen." We have not forgot the Panay episode when American lives were snuffed out by Japanese guns.

We are not in any mood to tolerate repetition of those humiliating episodes from our adversaries of another day.

Russia now has let the world know where she stands. The next move in the shooting case is up to the State Department. Surely we will not acquiesce to the crime by closing our books on the matter so easily and so soon.

Oil in Georgia?

There couldn't be a better tonic for Georgia's economic ills than the discovery of oil in the State.

And that, said two renowned geologists here yesterday, isnt' at all impossible. In fact, they agreed that the possibilities of oil are strong in the Southwest portion of the State, the area about Savannah and the Okefenokee Swamp, in addition to the offshore area.

There have been, of course, numerous test wells in Georgia. But the trouble is, said the geologists, there haven't been enough of them and they haven't gone deep enough.

We hope some of the oil companies holding leases in South Georgia will get busy and make the necessary tests. If Georgia is rich in oil, we can't think of a better generation to benefit from it than this one.

A Strike Against Progress

It seems to us that the railroad strike projected for next Wednesday essentially is a strike against progress.

Diesel engines, which railroads rapidly have been acquiring in recent years, are more efficient than steam locomotives. They can haul heavier trains at less cost.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, ignoring a Presidential Fact Finding Board's recommendations, has called a strike against four major lines, including the Southern, to enforce demands for a second fireman aboard the Diesels. The Fact Finding Board said the safety and on-time performance of Diesels has been notably good and classed the union's demands as "devoid of merit." Indeed, those familiar with the situation say the the single fireman now assigned to Diesels has much time on his hands.

But the union, fearing loss of jobs, wants to force the railroads to add another fireman, even though he is not needed. The extra man would be merely a drag on the railroads' already overburdened treasuries. The long-time effect would be to shift more traffic to the railroads' competitors, eliminating far more jobs than would be added by this featherbedding practice.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Looking for Better Men in Government

WASHINGTON—President Truman has moved to put through a long-needed reform in Government. With a view to bringing into the Government service men of outstanding ability and proven talents, he has set up a special committee to draw up the blueprint of a program for drafting the "best brains" of the country to serve in key Federal positions. The President is thinking not so much of the run-of-the-mine type of jobs which are customarily treated as patronage—postmasters, U. S. marshals, district attorneys and the like. What he has in mind are the more important agencies, such as the Atomic Energy Commission, for example, where specialized knowledge rather than political background should be the chief requisite of an appointee.

There are any number of these key agencies and commissions, all rendering decisions which have a vital bearing on the nation's economy and wellbeing—FCC, RFC, ICC, the Federal Trade Commission, Securities Exchange Commission and the Federal Power Commission, to name only a few.

For a number of years the practice has been to give political considerations the major weight in filling these commissions. In making appointments, men were judged more by their political backing than their qualifications for the office. It was the old theory of paying a man off for his political support or campaign contributions.

Through that system it was inevitable a number of hacks would creep into the Government service. The surprising thing of it is that as many good men were found as there were. But now the President would give the problem a different approach. Instead of relying on political indorsements to provide men for these key positions, he is having a survey made of the best-qualified persons to serve.

As explained by White House Secretary Charles Ross, the object is to make a sort of catalog of the people throughout the country who are worth considering for presidential appointments. He explained that "there are a lot of good people whose light is hidden under a bushel basket." The President wants to get a line on these. Merit rather than influence would be the new order of the day in making important appointments.

Mr. Truman long has complained of not being able to get the right sort of people to enter the Government service. One of the difficulties has been in the relatively small salaries the Government pays in comparison with private industry. The top figure for the various Government commissions is around $20,000 a year, whereas a man holding a comparable executive position in business or industry very often commands five times that amount.

Still another thing that has worked to keep good men out of Government is the rawhiding they often take at the hands of Congress. The case of David Lilienthal, former head of the great TVA organization, is one in point. He was practically forced out of his important administrative assignment by the continuous attacks made on him by a small group of congressional malcontents, notably Sen. Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee. Others have met a similar fate.

Mr. Truman is out to correct all of this by having a special committee, composed of members of the "Little Cabinet," work out a proper program. An honor list of eligibles for the key posts will be selected without regard to partisanship or political considerations. The "Little Cabinet" committee is made up of the various undersecretaries and assistant secretaries of departments, headed by Donald Dawson, one of the President's administrative assistants.

The program should mark a real step forward. At a time when the vast governmental structure is exanding and is coming, more and more, to exercise a dominant influence in the economy and life of the nation, it is all the more important that the Government should command the best brains the country can provide to direct its multiple affairs.

We had a sample of what Mr. Truman has in mind during the war. Then the Government went out and virtually conscripted leading executives in business and industry to take over important functions. All of them responded as a patriotic duty, though they did so at a sacrifice in personal earnings.

If the President succeeds in this one undertaking, it will be a badge which history will not fail to award him for an outstanding achievement.

BUGS BAER

New York, New Haven & Sway-back is selling its railroad stations for jumbo grocery markets. That's a new idea in railroading, with the passengers arriving in wire baskets on little wheels.

A Boston banker named Charley Gabriel figured out that gimmick all by himself. If he had any help it would be a conspiracy.

The new owners will incorporate the market, a shopping center and a movie theater along the right-of-way. There will be a canasta instructor on the locals.

RALPH McGILL

How the Commies Confuse

Communists carry on at all times a deadpan effort to maintain confusion. In discussing their fouling-up of the recent murder case at Carrollton, Ga., where they have taken up the convicted man in an effort to use him in appeals for money—which they will keep—I find I was fooled in some minor points by their propaganda.

There has never been an audit of these Communist appeals in behalf of "innocent" victims. Morris Ernst, the able and courageous New York attorney who has been campaigning to have a Federal law requiring all special appeal organizations to be audited, charges the Communists use such victims as fronts and spend the money on themselves and their propaganda.

(Ku Klux Klan organizers often laugh at the suckers who pay in $10 to keep them in comfort without toil. The two organizations are very much alike.)

At any rate, I have been digging into the case and I find that the Communists managed to confuse me about some of the facts, even though I thought I had cleanly threshed them out. It is possible to audit their propaganda.

Error The Communists, in charging the trial was a frame-up, never claimed their man was innocent. His conviction was on circumstantial evidence, but it was adequate and strong, and there was enough of it to remove reasonable doubt.

On going into it, the evidence presents itself so effectively there is no longer reasonable doubt in my own mind of the man's guilt. I find that on the stand he offered to plead guilty to murder. He owned the gun identified by ballistic experts as the one used in the brutal murder of which he was convicted.

There are witnesses who testify he was brutal to his wife and subjected her to frequent beatings. It was after the Commies took her away that the statement of a devoted father and husband was made. This is one of the points on which I was confused by their propaganda.

There was a second instance. They, the Commies, had produced statements that the Negro witnesses who testified against the defendant were his enemies. This I find to be a distortion. They certainly were not his friends. They feared him as a tough, mean man who when drunk or drinking was dangerous with a knife or gun. It must be kept in mind that the basic strength of the case was largely testimony by Negroes who knew the defendant well. They smashed his alibi. Indeed, important evidence has been found since the trial which is direct and not circumstantial.

'Committee' Some members of the "Henderson Defense Committee" properly are cited for contempt of court because of a pamphlet charging the verdict to have been a frame-up by the court.

In the hearing, which was adjourned for further investigation, there was testimony that the non-Communist members of the committee had not read the pamphlet; that it was mailed from the Progressive Party headquarters in Atlanta (the Henry Wallace party); and that the man's two attorneys had never read it.

The pastor of the Mt. Calvary Church in Atlanta said he allowed his name to be used because he had been appealed to to help aid the man's pregnant wife and children. He said he was not a member of the Progressive Party, which is a captive of the Communist Party and used by it. (In Georgia its official leader, personally named by Wallace, resigned because the Commie influences were too strong.)

Exploitation This is but a small portion of the evidence which indicates how the Communists involve others and exploit the credulous and those neurotics whose load of idealism keep them close to the nervous-crack-up stage. Indeed, one of the witnesses went to pieces on the stand, broken by the ruthless manner in which the Commies had played upon his idealism and his naive attitude.

The fact remains, however, the man's family should have had help. Society fails when it leaves such persons to be picked up by Communists and paraded through the mails and the press as the necessary wards of the Communists. This is by no means merely a Southern error. Nor is it confined merely to the families of Negroes convicted of brutal crimes. It is a problem which should be met by the courts which, while they have no enabling legislation, could at all times call attention to the public of the fate of any family left destitute by a convicted criminal.

The case also illustrates perfectly the Communist method of distortion of the evidence and the circumstances of a case. It seems quite possible the Communist Party officials and the Progressive Party office workers who charge a grand jury, trial jury and court with a frame-up, might properly be called upon to appear.

There seems no reasonable doubt about the guilt of the defendant. His family should be assisted and cared for. To fail in this opens the door for the Commies.

It also appears it may be possible to care for the Commies and their aides on the contempt charge. It certainly is an opportunity to expose their methods to public view.

Are We Making the H-Bomb?

WASHINGTON—Is the United States now making a serious, all-out effort to produce a true hydrogen bomb? If not, why not?

All discussion of the problems involved in making the hydrogen bomb—a subject which may affect the lives of all Americans only too intimately—must be carried on gropingly, in near-darkness. Yet the basic, publicly available facts on this hideously unpleasant subject have been reported recently in this space. And these facts point rather obviously to certain interesting deductions.

In the first place, all the available evidence clearly indicates that a very great effort indeed must be made if the true hydrogen bomb is to be achieved. The problem of "maintaining assembly"—of keeping the bomb mechanism intact long enough for the fusion process to take place—is in itself a fantastically difficult scientific and engineering problem.

Evidence Yet conversely, all the evidence at hand also suggests that nothing like the kind of effort apparently required is in fact being made. This evidence falls into three parts. Part one is the President's brief statement — "I have directed the Atomic Energy Commission to continue its work on all forms of atomic weapons, including the so-called hydrogen or super-bomb." This statement clearly implies that no special, new, or extra effort is contemplated.

Part two is the budget. Very great expenditures will clearly be necessary if the extraordinary problems involved in making the hydrogen bomb are to be solved in anything like the immediate future.

Part three is the scientists. The great scientists who made the atom bomb possible—Oppenheimer, Urey, Bethe, Zacharias, Bacher, Fermi, A. H. Compton, to name a random list—are clearly not working full time, or even part time, on the hydrogen project. They are lecturing, or working in their universities, or otherwise occupied.

Put these three pieces of evidence together, and it is difficult to escape an obvious conclusion. The United States is not now engaged in an all-out effort to perfect the new weapon. A reasonable guess would be that the effort, compared with the wartime Manhattan Project, is on a comparatively leisurely, peacetime basis.

Objections It is also possible to make a reasonable guess about how this situation came about. It is no secret that many of the scientists from the start bitterly opposed attempting to manufacture the hydrogen bomb. To their voices was added the powerful voice of former Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, David Lilienthal.

The objection of the scientists was largely based initially on moral and emotional grounds. But in part, perhaps, to support the moral argument, technical grounds were also advanced for not trying to make the bomb.

Some of these have been briefly, and no doubt in over-simplified form, described in this space. There is every reason to believe that the "problem of maintaining assembly" can only be solved if a very heavy form of hydrogen, called tritium, is used as the basic material. And aside from other grave disadvantages, both uranium raw materials and uranium piles are needed to make tritium.

This brings the tritium bomb into direct competition with the atom bomb. Moreover, although no one denies that a single tritium bomb would be far more devastating than a single atom bomb, at least some of the scientists have argued that the pay-off, in terms of total area destroyed measured against the total investment of effort and material, would be much lower for the tritium bomb than for the atom bomb.

Risk It is possible to suspect that as a consequence, American policy on the hydrogen or tritium bomb has fallen neatly between two stools. On the one hand, the moral and technical objections of the scientists have been overridden. The AEC will "continue its work"—very probably the initial effort will be made to find an intermediate bomb, in which the fusion principle will be used principally to increase the efficiency of the fission bomb. On the other hand, no great and risky investment will be made to achieve the true hydrogen bomb in the shortest possible time.

From all this, two conclusions emerge. First, it must certainly be assumed that the Soviets are at work on a hydrogen project, with an absolute, wartime priority. Unless it can be demonstrated conclusively that the effort to make the hydrogen bomb is unquestionably a bad investment, we have no alternative but to attempt to match the Soviet effort. Second, we cannot conceivably hope to match the Soviets where secrecy is concerned. Only a fool would propose public discussion of authentic secrets. But unless such facts as are certainly known to the Soviets can be brought into the open and discussed, the democratic process of decision simply ceases to function.

You Can't Pin McCarthy Down

WASHINGTON—One cannot do justice to Sen. Joe McCarthy without the congressional immunity from libel suits which he himself enjoys.

One may pinpoint the physical characteristics of the man. The beetle-brows, the flashing eyes, the Bob Hope nose, the mobile mouth. A handsome face, in the aggregate, only now settling into jowls.

One may inventory his mannerisms, the self-described "hog-calling voice"; the constant leveling of an accusing finger at the audience; the hunching of the shoulders and the burying of his destroyer-prow chin in his neck as he plows like a final-yard fullback into the opposition; and finally, but by no means least frequent, the business of ostentatiously swigging a swallow of water after making a dubious point.

But one has to see McCarthy in action to realize how convincing he can be, to appreciate the verbal footwork of the innuendo and the smear as practiced by a complete master of art. One has to hear him skillfully fabricate an indictment from a mass of double-talk and irrelevancies. One has to watch as he avoids and evades cross-examination, turning the questions into the launching ways for another tirade.

When McCarthy gets going, there is literally no stemming the tide of his vituperativeness nor of hemming him in with the facts. Thursday night, before several hundred newspaper editors, Gen. Snow, Chairman of the State Department's Loyalty and Security Board, denied categorically and point by point the McCarthy charges. And yet the Senator left the hall with the self-satisfied swagger of a man who had completely proved his case.

Sen. McCarthy has not, like yon Cassius, a lean and hungry look. But the subsequent description fits him better than well. Such men are indeed dangerous. One has the feeling, watching him, that such a potentially powerful political personality has not cast its shadow on the national scene since the timely death of Huey Long.

Speaking of the Kingfish, the South can be grateful to Sen. McCarthy for one thing. He is glib and articulate proof that we have no corner on demagogues.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all letters to Editor Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Government Competition

Editor Constitution: I would appreciate a little help, please. I have worked for the Express Company for 31 years. I have watched parcel post shipments grow year by year by increased weights and size of shipments. I have also watched the loss of handling parcel post grow year by year from a few thousand to nearly two hundred million a year.

If the express operates at a loss, the express company makes the loss good. The parcel post does operate at a loss that has to be made good by the public in all kind of taxes, a loss which is growing each year and will reach a loss of two hundred million by the end of 1950. Where are the business brains of the postmaster general?

The House of Representatives has passed H. R. 2945, providing increased parcel post rates, with reductions in weights and sizes. That does not interfere with the present rates, size or weights to and from any point on a rural or star route, or to and from any third or fourth-class post office. This bill will cut down that two hundred million loss in parcel post that is growing each year. That loss falls in the lap of the public. Don't you think it is time for the parcel post department to have a good house-cleaning?

Riverdale, Ga. W. S. MACKEY.

Great Help

Editor Constitution: May I express my sincere thanks for the wonderful editorial that appeared recently in The Constitution? I know I am speaking for everyone connected with the Symphony when I tell you that the magnificent support given the Symphony by your newspaper has been one of the great helps in the orchestra's progress to date, and the climax to our season was your wonderful editorial.

Again many thanks for all of the wonderful help you and your staff have given me.

HENRY SOPKIN, Conductor,
Atlanta Symphony Orchestra.

Fine, Friendly City

Editor Constitution: I must take exception to the so-called "Yankee" from Decatur. This is only my second trip to Atlanta from Hartford, Conn., but I have found it to be one of the finest, most friendly cities in the country, and I have been in most of them. If the Decatur "Yankee" doesn't like the way Atlantans drive, he'd sure have a "gripe" at the New York or Boston drivers.

Incidentally, who ever heard of a real "Yankee" hailing from Decatur?

E. B. CHALMERS.

Atlanta (temporarily).

Why Not an Exception?

Editor Constitution: Concerning M. L. St. John's column, "A Deserving Trusty Wants Out," April 15, I know for a fact the story is true.

This prisoner made a mistake 15 years ago, and is still being punished for it.

I am the Georgia woman in love with this prisoner.

I am a widow and have a young son. He loves this man also, and we visit at the institution every Sunday.

I know this prisoner has reformed and I will be proud to have him rear my son.

I have done all I can to get this man released, but to no avail. I have talked to all members of the Parole Board. They state they have to have something definite to go on, such as a letter from the Judge or Solicitor that sentenced this man. A letter like that cannot be had, as both of these men are dead.

I know there are numerous very high recommendations that this man be paroled, and he has an excellent record while being confined. But this alone is not enough for the Board to give him special consideration. Oh! how grateful we would be if the Parole Board could see fit to make an exception in this case based on this prisoner's good record and the fact it would bring untold happiness to we three people.

North Georgia. WIDOW.

A Fine Record

Editor Constitution: In re M. L. St. John's column of April 16, "A Deserving Trusty Wants Out," I am a stepfather of one of these boys. I have been to Rome one to three times a month for the last 18 months. I have read every issue of The Beacon published so far and I think it is a wonderful paper. I have known this man and consider him as good a friend as my son or myself have. I have talked to him on the mornings after he has stayed up all night cooking for the boys. I have watched him play and coach sports and think he is as clean cut a sportsman as I have ever known. I don't think the lad who talked to St. John is the only lad there who would serve those 19 months for this man.

I also know the lady whom he wants to marry and a lot of her people are my neighbors and have been for years. All nice folks. He has sure been a help to the boys and the camp in general and I, like the lad who talked to St. John, think this man has reformed. I know he has been like a father to my boy and the other boys. And I think the Parole Board should make an exception in his case, although I agreed with them when they refused my boy a parole because he had not learned discipline.

You have my permission to use all or any part of this letter for publication with or without my name. GRATEFUL FATHER.

Editor's Note: The writer's name is withheld for obvious reasons. ●

Too Much 'Fuss'

Editor Constitution: I see so much about the "Donalsonville incident" as if it was something terrible. I have seen white preachers preach to colored people for more than 60 years, and have seen colored schools have white teachers, and this is the first time I ever heard of anyone trying to make something sinister out of it. I don't think anyone should try to do or say anything to try to hinder anyone from trying to help them to be better, in this country, or in Africa as far as that is concerned.

That may have been just the work of just one crank who threatened the preacher, and if the program had gone through with he never would have been heard from again.

The idea of connecting such incident with "Communism!" W. M. COX.

Presbyterian Council To Convene in Decatur

Dr. J. R. McCain to Preside; New Budget To Be Drafted

General Council of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., which co-ordinates and reports on work of the church, will hold its three-day Spring meeting at the Decatur Presbyterian Church beginning Tuesday. Dr. J. R. McCain, Chairman, will preside.

Reports on membership and finance for the church year, which closed March 31, will be made. A new budget for the year 1951-52 will be submitted by the subcommittee on stewardship and budget, of which George B. Hoyt, of Atlanta, is chairman. It is believed this budget will exceed the amount the church has been asked to raise this current year for church work. Total benevolent giving of the denomination includes money given by local churches for their own, for presbytery and for synod benevolences. The total last church year exceeded $34,000,000. That compares with a figure of $18,633,788 for the church year 1944-45.

A goal of 100,000 additions to the church was established in the year just closed and reports indicate it was met, although no official figure has been released.

In addition to Hoyt, the chairman of subcommittees are the Rev. James A. Jones, D. D., Charlotte, N. C., program; the Rev. Wallace M. Alston, D. D., Decatur, publicity, and the Rev. John Newton Thomas, Ph. D., Richmond, Va., research.

W. E. Price, Charlotte, moderator of the General Assembly, is a member of the Council, ex-officio. In addition, members include the following: On the Budget Committee, the Rev. R. McFerran Crowe, Oklahoma City; L. Roy Klein, Dallas, Texas; the Rev. R. Girard Lowe, Jackson, Miss.; the Rev. C. J. Matthews, Zackary, La.; E. L. Repass, Salem, Va.; the Rev. M. O. Somers, Kingsport, Tenn.; Mrs. John P. Walker, Collierville, Tenn.; the Rev. C. J. Hollandsworth, Norfolk, Va.; J. R. Neal, Atlanta, and W. A. L. Sibley, Union, S. C.; publicity, the Rev. John F. GLASS OF FASHION

It's Not Your Age But Inches That Count

By MAYNITA GERRY
Constitution Fashion Editor

Juniors, fashionably speaking, are a size, not an age. And how do you determine whether you're a junior?

The person who can best answer this question arrived in Atlanta this morning. She is Mrs. Margery Rieser, fashion consultant for the Carlye Dress Corporation, of St. Louis, visiting here as the guest of Davison's for two Carlye fashion shows on Saturday at 2 and 4 p. m.

Margery Rieser

"If your waist is short, your legs are long and your upper torso is small, you're a junior size, regardless of your age."

In defining the junior size, Mrs. Rieser pointed out that the main differential between this and a misses size lies in the over-all construction of the body, rather than in height. Both heights, as a matter of fact, can be anywhere from five feet, five inches and under. The junior body is slighter and more immature in structure; the misses is fuller and more rounded.

"We were the first in our field to recognize the fact that there were literally millions of women in the junior size group, irregardless of age," said Mrs. Rieser, "and to guage our designs in order to embrace the entire age range in this group."

"Since schoolgirls as well as mature women buy our clothes," Mrs. Reiser pointed out, "we pay close attention to details of construction." Hand-finishing is an important feature in their line, for example. All their clothes are designed by four designers, who have immediate access to all the important fashion information from New York and Paris. And they plan and buy fabrics as far as five months ahead of each completed collection.

In the Spring and Summer collection, which includes the clothes to be shown here, there is cotton mull in all the new dark shades for street clothes, tiny pin-checked gingham, crease-resistant Irish linen and the new transparencies, including cotton batiste and imported Swiss organdy.

Colors, combinations of colors and of fabrics reveal a deft, sure hand. Pimanized broadcloth combined with striped shirting from some of the shirtwaist versions that will be especially good this Summer. Organdies in the tantalizing blonde shades, linens in sand and gold, and orange used for smart touches of trim.

One of the new transparents, done in a golden blonde Swiss organdy and referred to fondly by Mrs. Rieser as "half dress, half butterfly," has wide horizontal insertions of Schiffli embroidery dyed to match and was designed as a part of the group classified as short afternoon and/or evening dress.

Starting with casual sun and play clothes, the line spreads steadily to include street clothes, separates, luncheon and afternoon dresses and short evening types, so dear to the hearts of women in America and Paris this year.

"We are simply enamoured of the separates idea in clothes," Mrs. Rieser confided, "and include it in every collection." For instance, what appears at first glance to be a simple little one-piece shirtwaist dress, will more than likely be a blouse tacked to the skirt for practical purposes, but is easily and quickly removable for double duty in the wardrobe.

Mrs. Rieser travels extensively for Carlyle, conducting fashion shows and consulting with women about their personal fashion problems. And thereby hangs another important feature of this line. The styling of all the basic garments is never so extreme that they will be outmoded in a few short months.

This, according to Mrs. Rieser, gives women a chance at a good, basic wardrobe which she can add to as occasions arise over a period of years.

She goes still further and suggests that women choose their clothes to fit their daily activities, adding one or two new styles each season to replenish the stock, but don't ever have a greater supply of clothes than you have time to keep clean, fresh-looking and in impeccable repair.

Lilacs Provide Theme For Dickson-Philips Rites

With lilacs forming the decorative theme of her wedding, Miss Virginia Carolyn Dickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Franklin Dickson, was married to Harry Watson Philips, of Tallahassee, Fla., at a beautiful ceremony solemnized last evening at the First Presbyterian Church, with Dr. William V. Gardner officiating. Mr. Philips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Volney Graham Philips, of Tallahassee.

The brides attendants were gowned in orchid dotted swiss over matching taffeta and they carried violet-tinted lace baskets, filled with purple lilacs, the baskets matching the deeper shade of their taffeta sashes which extended to the floor.

The bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Mrs. George W. Long; the bride's cousin, Miss Sandra Dickson, of Anderson, S. C.; Mrs. Dade Moeller, of Las Alamos, N. M.; Mrs. John Conyers, of Cartersville; Miss Carol Thomas, Miss Frances Templin, Miss Ann Register, and Miss Nellie Scott.

Mrs. John M. Druary, of New York City, who was matron of honor for her sister, wore white dotted swiss over apple green taffeta, and carried a white lace basket filled with white lilacs and Easter lilies which were dyed green.

Each attendant wore around her throat a velvet band to match her sash on which was attached a jeweled pin, the gift of the bride.

Mr. Dickson gave his daughter in marriage. She wore the Victorian duchess satin and lace wedding gown worn by her sister, Mrs. Druary, the former Miss Betty Dickson. Her illusion veil cascaded from a cap of lace which was caught at either side with a cluster of lilacs showered with rhinestone dewdrops.

The bride carried a shower bouquet of white lilacs, white orchids and lily lilies.

The groom's brother, the Rev. J. Davison Philips, was best man, and the groomsmen included Kenneth Prichard, Walter DeMilly and Preston DeMilly, all of Tallahassee; Marcus Buttrell, Bernard Blackwell, George Long, Ray McCallister, and Joe Clemons.

Ushers were Dr. James K. Fancher, George Hoyt, Perry Blackshear, Dowse B. Donaldson, Ralph Huie, James E. Anderson, Rev. Harold C. Smith, and A. R. Clas, of Washington, D. C.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Dickson entertained at an elaborate reception at the East Lake Country Club, with myriads of lilacs forming the decorations. Mrs. R. Rankin, III, and Mrs. Joseph D. Cook kept the bride's book, and pouring coffee were Mrs. Hugh Scott and Mrs. James K. Fancher.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Perry Blackshear, Olin Cofer, Eugene Oberdorfer, Dowse Donaldson, Charles Goodman, George Hoyt, Carl Oliver, Jr., Asa Patterson, M. M. O'Sullivan, Charles Sheldon, Jr., John B. Whitton, F. Graham Williams, Misses Priscilla Dickson, Connie Laube, Missie Jones and Eurelia Turpin.

Following their wedding trip, Mr. Philips and his bride will reside in Tallahassee, where he is associated in business with his father.

I Want To Go There, Don't You?

Several months ago two members of the Battle Hill Haven Auxiliary were visiting the old residents of the Haven wards when they noticed a manuscript of a song at the bedside of Edward Cowan Smith. The paper was soiled and worn, but they picked it up and took it back to the recreation room and played it on the piano and found it a pretty tuneful composition.

It was titled "I Want to Go There, Don't You?" and its words and rhythm were religious, touching on a heavenly home to come, "'Tis built in the land of the sweet bye and bye. . . ."

The Auxiliary was determined to have the song copyrighted and published, and this week 5,000 copies are being distributed to churches all over the State, with the request that the song be sung in Sunday services.

Proceeds from the song will go as do all benefits to the Greater Atlanta Board for Convalescent and Aged . . . to convalescent equipment, linens, water coolers, wheel chairs and other necessities to make the last days of many old people more comfortable.

One man is dead and another jailed as the result of what police described as the second bootleg liquor war incident within six months.

Preston Compton

Preston C. Compton, 27, of 607 Emily Pl., N. W., father of two, was killed in an exchange of gunfire at Cain and Williams Streets, N. W., near the Greyhound bus station, at 2 a. m. yesterday, Dets. R. E. Little and H. E. Burdette said.

Claude Lundy, 29, Negro of 1615 Griffin St., N. W., who was quoted as saying the argument arose over a liquor debt, was booked at city jail on suspicion of murder.

Lt. M. M. Coppenger said Compton, a used car dealer, was arrested April 18 in Pickens County and placed under $500 bond on charges of transporting illegal liquor. FBI records show he was sentenced Jan. 15, 1939, in Fulton County to serve five years for larceny of an automobile. He was granted a conditional pardon Oct. 9, 1939.

Six months ago, Claude Ford, 45, of 500 Fairway Hills, S. E., was critically injured at Cain and Jackson Streets in a similar early morning argument over a liquor transaction. Dets. J. E. Helms and W. M. Holland said. They said Ford and a companion stopped a Negro man on the street to collect money for a liquor transaction. Ford was stabbed.

Henry Raiford, Negro, of a pine Street, N. E. address was taken into custody several weeks later. Detectives said Ford refused to prosecute, however.

Funeral services for Compton will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Ebenezer Baptist Church. The Rev. A. C. Marshall and the Rev. G. T. Jones will officiate. Burial will be in Mount zion churchyard.

Compton is survived by his wife; two daughters, Misses Priscilla Carole and Beverly Louise Compton; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tascar Compton; four sisters, Mrs. C. A. Porter, Mrs. Hubert Parker, Miss Jacqueline Compton and Miss Altha Jo Compton, and two brothers, Berlye and David Compton, all of Atlanta.

Central of Ga. Asks To Buy Camak Line

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Central of Georgia Railway Company yesterday asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to acquire control of the Savannah and Atlanta Railway, through a subsidiary.

The transaction, involving a purchase price of $3,500,000, would be carried out on the basis of a $2,500,000 loan to the Central of Georgia by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The Savannah and Atlanta Company operates about 145 miles of trackage between Savannah and Camak, Ga., where its line links with the Central of Georgia Railway running between Atlanta and Augusta, Ga.

Central told the ICC that it proposes to loan the $2,500,000 obtained from the RFC, plus another $800,000 cash to the Empire Land Company, Central's wholly-owned subsidiary.

In adition, Central will buy an additional $200,000 of Empire common stock, which will be issued for this purpose.

This will provide the $3,500,000 required for the transaction:

Empire Land Company proposes to buy all of the capital stock of the Fort Wentworth Corporation, which now owns all of the common stock and 5,500 shares of the preferred of the Savannah and Atlanta Railway Company.

Empire will also buy 1,537 shares of Savannah and Atlanta preferred not owned by Wentworth.

3 Cities Urge U. S. Restriction On Gambling

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Top municipal officials from New Orleans, Los Angeles and Miami urged Congress yesterday to give them Federal help in curbing gambling operations that are corrupting police and contributing to gang slayings.

The witnesses included Mayor Delesseps S. Morrison, of New Orleans; Mayor Fletcher Bowron, of Los Angeles; Mayor William Wolfarth, of Miami; Police Chief William A. Worton, of Los Angeles, and Lynn White, chief of the Los Angeles Police Department's intelligence service.

Vacant Housing Report Missing

A missing report on a claim there are 1,460 housing-unit vacancies in Atlanta had some quarters of City Hall in a dither yesterday.

Ed Hiles, Acting Secretary of the Atlanta Property Owners' Association, had made the claim April 5 at a councilmanic hearing on rent controls.

The committee conducting the hearing ordered a check of the figures, turning the job over to W. F. Taylor, of the City Building Inspection Office.

Taylor says he has completed the work and made a report to Building Inspector Marvin Harper. Harper, however, was out of town yesterday and couldn't be reached. No explanation was given by his office as to why the report hasn't been made public.

Court Backs Fingerprint Ordinance

Local Trolley Men Ponder Next Move

A ruling of the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upholding Atlanta's "fingerprint" ordinance today leaves protesting union members only two remaining courses of action.

The New Orleans court left the way open for drivers to sue for damages if the ordinance is "administered with an evil eye and in a discriminatory manner," and the case may be appealed further to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Attorneys for Jesse L. Walton, union leader, said they would "study the New Orleans decision for a while" before announcing whether the union will continue its fight.

Walton himself said he "was busy trying to work out an agreement with Georgia Power Company on a new contract and would leave the court action on this in the hands of my attorneys."

The Circuit Court ruling also upheld the City's requirement that cab and trolley operators be photographed and pay a $3 license fee. The decision was in the case of Walton and other union members against the City of Atlanta. The union alleged drivers' "work constitutes their property" and that their right to work without arbitrary limitation was violated by the ordinances.

Earlier, both U. S. District Court Judge M. Neil Andrews and Fulton Superior Court Judge Ralph Pharr had held the ordinances do not violate the drivers' rights.

Police Chief Herbert Jenkins said he would await instructions from the City's legal department before continuing fingerprinting of operators, and City Attorney Jack Savage said he could not issue instructions "until I receive papers from New Orleans."

Before the union obtained a temporary Federal restraining order against the City, about 200 operators had been fingerprinted and photographed, Jenkins said.

Chanin and Daniel Capture Men's Bridge Pair Title

By WHITNER CARY
Former Constitution Bridge Editor

Producing a sensational 70 percent game, Henry Chanin and Don Daniel, two outstanding Atlanta experts, won the men's pair championship yesterday afternoon in the Georgia State Contract Bridge tournament at the Georgian Terrace Hotel. Mrs. J. B. McConnell, Atlanta, and Mrs. F. Fountain, Knoxville, won the women's pair championship held at the same time.

Seldom in the long history of the Georgia State tournament has a higher score been made than that produced by Chanin and Daniel. They needed those 218 points out of a possible 312 for in second place, with the remarkable score of 213¼ points, were Dr. Don Beard and Lewis Loeb, another outstanding Atlanta pair.

Mark W. Ellett and Jack King, Atlanta, with 189½ points, were third. John Tyner and Erskine Jones, Atlanta, with 174 points, were fourth. H. C. Agnew, Anniston, and T. C. Drake, Oak Ridge, with 172½ points, were fifth among 28 pairs competing.

The defending champions, J. E. Feagin and Scott Hogg, Atlanta, passed out of the picture with a slightly below average game of 168 points. As top on the board was 12 some idea can be gathered of how far the two leading pairs outdistanced the field.

While this torrid pace was being set in the men's event, Mrs. McConnell and Mrs. Fountain, with the highly respectable score of 174½ points, won a photo decision by one and one-half points over Mrs. Robert Ingram, Atlanta, and Mrs. C. R. Perry, Oak Ridge. Mrs. Margaret Wagar, Atlanta, co-holder with the absent Mrs. J. T. Daniel, Atlanta, of the 1949 title, teamed with Mrs. Marion Kiser, Atlanta, and finished third with a score of 153½ points. Mrs. M. C. Jones, Atlanta, and Mrs. E. W. Huddleston, Atlanta, with 151 points, were fourth. Mrs. Edna Giles, Atlanta, and Mrs. Ross Bateman, Macon, with 150½ points, were fifth. Twenty-five pairs competed.

Court clerks have received and will forward the fine.

3 Draw 6-Month Terms In Drunk Driving Cases

By FRANK MAJORS

Three persons pleading guilty to drunk driving charges in Fulton Criminal Court received six-month public works sentences from Judge John S. McClelland.

Seven first offenders were fined $75 and given eight-month suspended sentences. Another charged with being drunk on a public highway was given a three-month suspended sentence for allowing another intoxicated person to drive his car.

McClelland commented that "drunk driving was considered a very serious offense by the two Criminal Court judges. The punishment we hand out is no more than is appropriate for such a charge."

He recalled that the usual fine for first offenders is $75 and eight months suspended. Straight public works sentences are the rule for repeaters. Drivers' licenses are invariably suspended for differing periods of time on all convictions.

Those receiving straight sentences yesterday were: Grady Hayes, 34, of Roswell, six months, license suspended indefinitely; G. W. Mooney, 38, 461 Metropolitan, six months, license suspended indefinitely, and L. M. McElhannon, 32, of 699 Cherokee, 12 months, six suspended, license suspended indefinitely.

DRYGOODS REPORT

NEW YORK—(AP)—Small sales for near-by delivery continued to account for limited activity in the cotton textile market Friday. Prices on sheetings, broadcloths and print cloths were about unchanged. The wool goods market was steady. Reordering of fine worsteds for the Fall season improved, indicating manufacturers had underestimated their requirements. Raw wool prices continued high, with the auction at Melbourne at or near the season's peak. Rayon goods were dull.

Soybeans Rise To New Highs

CHICAGO —(AP)— Soybeans spurted into new high ground Friday in a move generated by Government buying of cash beans.

Old crop contracts made new seasonal peaks, May selling at the best price for any soybean future since December, 1948. November soybeans equalled its previous peak as new crop contracts also displayed a good deal of strength.

Early buying in soybeans came from cash and shipping houses, presumably representing lifting of hedges against sales of cash beans to the Government. After that, the distressed shorts helped along the rise by covering their commitments.

May and July corn made new seasonal peaks, too. Wheat jumped more than a cent on continued lack of moisture in the Southwest. Oats firmed and even rye joined in the advance. Firmness in cash markets helped corn and oats.

Wheat closed 1⅜-1⅝ higher, May $2.27¾, corn was ¾ to 1 cent higher, May $1.40⅝-1.40¼, ats were ⅜-1⅜ higher, May 79, rye was ¾-1⅜ higher, May $1.32½, soybeans were 2 to 4¼ higher, May $2.79¾-2.79½, and lard was unchanged to 3 cents a hundred pounds higher, May $11.

ATLANTA PRODUCE

(AP)—(USDA)—Trading on the Atlanta produce market, according to the Production and Marketing Administration, was rather light Friday with receipts arriving in moderate volume. Prices for the most part held steady with cabbage showing a little firmer and squash continued weak. Cabbage ranged from 75-85 cents per bag.

Greens held about steady and collards, light in supply, moved at $1.25-1.50 per dozen bunches. Mustard and turnip greens ranged from 75c-$1 per bushel in lots.

English peas held steady at $1.75-2.00 for Georgia stock. Tendergreen beans for Georgia stock. Tender green beans poorer quality beans lower. Pole beans were priced at $5.25-5.75, few best high as $6.50 with the ordinary to fair quality stock selling for $4.00-5.00. Cucumbers continued to be a scarce and high priced item. They sold at $8.50 per bushel with a few of the best higher.

Squash, yellow crookneck variety, was weak at $3.00-3.50 per bushel. Some large sizes and poorer quality sold low as $2.00-2.50.

Iceberg lettuce from Georgia held steady at $5.00 for crates of five-dozen sizes. Corn was steady with yellow priced at $3.00-3.25 and sacks of white five-dozen ears at $2.75-3.00, best mostly $3.00.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO—(INS)—The hog market renewed its advance Friday at the Chicago Stockyards on active buying. Cattle continued steady to strong. Receipts were light.

Hogs were 25 to 40 cents higher after Thursday's setback of about a similar amount. Top was $17, the highest since March 14. The supply totaled 4,500 and was 2,500 below the advance estimate.

Steers, heifers and cows were strong at the week's advance. Bulls and vealers were about steady. The supply totaled 1,000 and failed to include any choice steers. Few good steers sold at $29.

Lambs were strong. Good and choice wooled offerings were scarce and were quotable around $27.50.

In addition to light marketings, livestock values were aided by strength in the wholesale meat trade.

N. Y. Cotton Irregular In Active Trading

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cotton futures were irregular in moderately active trading Friday, with new crop deliveries reaching new season's highs on commission house and local buying. Demand for deferred deliveries was attributed to small crop ideas and private crop surveys indicating spotty conditions in the cotton belt. Nearby May futures were firm on trade covering prior to first notice day next Tuesday. There was a good deal of switching from May into the July 1950 delivery, with July declining on hedge selling.

Private Memphis advices said that local sales of spot cotton were large, with a good many equities selling from $5 to $10 a bale above the loan, plus carrying charges. A slight improvement in mill demand for spot cotton was reported.

A private crop survey said that heavy frosts last week delayed plantings and will cause considerable replanting in South Alabama and South Georgia. There were complaints of too cool weather in parts of the central belt. Recent rains were very beneficial to the crop in the Corpus Christi and Gulf Coast areas of Texas, the survey stated. More rain is needed in West Texas and Oklahoma, although very little cotton planting is scheduled there before the latter part of May, the survey observed.

Certificated cotton stocks increased 3,799 bales and now total 118,831 bales.

Futures closed $1.70 a bale higher to 10 cents lower than the previous close.

New Orleans Cotton Hits New Highs

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Most months in cotton futures here Friday advanced to new seasonal highs on trade buying and short covering. Closing prices were firm, 60 cents to $1.70 a bale higher.

Much of the buying was concentrated in new crop position. This was attributed as unfavorable crop reports from many sections of the belt and to predictions of record boll weevil survival because of the mild Winter. Near months lagged throughout the busy session due to long liquidation in preparation for first May notice day next Tuesday.

Middling 15-16th-inch spot cotton advanced 50 cents a bale to 32.45 cents a pound. Local sales amounted to 752 bales.

SUE, Mom, Dad and the kids went down to Jackson Lake Inn, the Peach State Paradise Peninsula. Mom said they had so much fun there. Dad tried to buy the place, lock, stock and barrel. The owners, after figuring Dad's total assets, including the cigarette lighter I gave him Xmas, told him if he could raise $15,000 cash down payment, they might talk turkey. For another delightful weekend meet me there. —BOB

Bridge Tournament, Guests and Gossip

By RITA VAN PELT

Bridge holds the spotlight on WCON today at 1 p. m. when a group of card experts gather around the microphone to discuss the Georgia State Bridge Tournament now in progress at the Georgian Terrace.

Appearing as guests on the special program will be Whitner Cary, former bridge editor of The Atlanta Constitution; Margaret Wagar, President Georgia Bridge League; R. L. Miles, President American Contract Bridge League; Eleanor Murdock, Life Master of Birmingham, Billy Barrett, former national champion; Ed Jarvis, first president of the Georgia Bridge League and Henry Tompkins, widely known local expert.

Comedy of Errors

Gentlemen do you know what to look for when hiring a secretary? . . . And by "secretary" we mean a girl who takes shorthand and has a speaking acquaintance with a typewriter. Jack Bailey, emcee of the WGST-MBS Comedy of Errors broadcast will attempt to give a few pointers on the subject when that program comes to the air at 7:30 this p. m.

Mlle. Modiste

"Madamoiselle Modiste," Victor Herbert's lilting musical about the Parisian shops and their wealthy patrons, will be given a tuneful adaptation over WGST-MBS tonight at 10. Coming as a Chicago Theater of the Air presentation, it will feature as vocalists soprano Nancy Carr, tenor John Carter, bass Donald Gramm and baritone Earle Wilkie.

TV Talk

WSB-TV boasts a brand-new series of telecasts in the Buck Rogers adventures starting this p. m. at 7. These are the exploits of a daring lad with a penchant for people of other planets and super-scientific devices and gadgets.

Ruby Keeler, one-time wife of Al Jolson, will make a professional comeback via television when she debuts on The Ken Murray Show over WAGA-TV this p. m. at 7. Other "oldies" promised for this telecast are Gloria Swanson, Chester Morris and Bonnie Baker.

Mary Lee Taylor

A husband who accuses the little wife of spoiling the baby while she is cutting her teeth suddenly finds himself cutting a wisdom tooth and so has to eat his words (on the other side, of course). It happens on the Mary Lee Taylor show at 10:30 this morning over WSB-NBC.

Dodgers Beamed

When the Dodgers meet the New York Giants this afternoon at 2:30 the game will be aired via WAGA-CBS with Red Barber and Connie Desmond reporting the play by play action. This is the first in a series of such home games to be covered by CBS.

Bible Quiz Answer

(Question on Page 9)

Today's Bible picture represents the parable of the Prodigal Son.

A CERTAIN MAN HAD TWO SONS: And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living. And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

And when he had spent all there arose a mighty famine in that land, and he began to be in want. And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine. And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat; and no man gave unto him.

And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! I will arise and go to my father and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.

AND HE AROSE and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him. And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet: And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat, and be merry; For this my son was dead, and is alive again: he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

NOW HIS ELDER SON was in the field: and as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard music and dancing. And he called one of the servants and asked what these things meant. And he said unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound. And he was angry, and would not go in: therefore came his father out, and intreated him. And he answering said to his father, Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment; and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends: But as soon as this thy son was come, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.

And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine. It was meet that we should make merry and be glad: for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again: and was lost, and is found.

Luke 15:11-32. From the Oxford Bible.

Take a Book on Birds On Walks With Children

By GLADYS BEVANS

There's a thrill in seeing with your own eyes, for the first time, a bird that you've only previously read about and seen pictures of in books. I can remember even now the first bluebird I ever saw, even more so the first rose-breasted grosbeak.

This year we've been having a very rare treat. To our feeding-tray has come a flock of evening grosbeaks—those beautiful, strong, golden birds with their more quietly-colored mates. Our family ornithologist has spent a minor fortune on their favorite food: sunflower seeds.

Of course as Spring and the nesting season comes along, birds are to be seen all about: in woods and fields—and by the shore, if that is where you roam to—by those who are already in love with these fascinating airborne creatures, as well as by those who are new at learning to know the birds.

If you are taking your children out to meet Spring, and the birds that come with it, one of your first requisites is a good simple book about birds. Also when going birding, it is well for at least one in the group to carry along a small notebook and pencil, a pair of opera or field-glasses if possible (on a shoulder-strap)—including the ability to be quiet and patient. Very early morning and sometimes dusk are the best times for bird-watchers.

Here are some books I promised to list—for children, teen-agers, and adults:

On the market now is the newly revised edition of Roger Tory Peterson's Field Guide to the Birds, pocket size giving field marks of all species found East of the Rockies. For my Western readers I want to mention that Mr. Peterson has also done a Book of Birds West of the Rockies. Bird lovers are enthusiastic over Mr. Peterson's books because of their clarity and good arrangement. Besides color plates, there are many pages of highly simplified black and white drawing giving identification marks. What the author does in each brief text is to describe the most pertinent point for identification in the field. On the hole. I would call this a book for those who were somewhat advanced bird-observers. This new edition is priced at $3.50, but Mr. Peterson has another book called How To Know The Birds, which is $2. The publisher is Houghton, Mifflin & Company, of Boston, Mass. This has also come out in a 35-cent edition.

There is a Mentor Book, pocket size, published by The American Library, 35 cents.

For the very young Simon and Schuster has a pocket-size Little Golden Book bird-guide, priced at 25 cents.

As to other pocket-size handbooks, you will find useful one of the small bird-guides on sale at most of the five and ten-cent stores.

YOUR MIND'S MIRROR

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Should your home life be all "sweetness and light"?

Answer: Not if this means smothering all the petty squabbles and flashes of temper that are part of human nature. A child brought up in a home where no harsh word was ever spoken would be ill prepared to face the real world when he grew up. He would be in much the same position as if he had never been exposed to "germs," and so developed no immunity against them. Living with two parents who actively hate each other is more than a child can safely be asked to endure, but he might as well know that Mother and Dad are human.

Is Horatio Alger out of date?

Answer: Yes, Professor Clyde Kuckhorn, Harvard anthropologist told a recent meeting of the Child Study Association. People who feel cheated because they have not been able to achieve the kind of success Alger pictured by the methods he said would lead to it form "the manpower reserve of demagogues and apostles of irrational social movements." We must narrow the gap between what we teach our children to aspire to and what they are likely to get. "We need a five-cent ideology much more than we need a five-cent cigar."

AUNT HET

There's no reason for anybody to feel sorry for Emily. She may look pretty awful to others, but every woman looks pretty good to herself.

Your Stars Today

WHAT TO EXPECT TODAY
Sun in Taurus

General Tendencies — Today and tomorrow should be among the best days of this month—money seems easy, invitations are flying around and all kinds of social contacts look promising. The moon will go into the sign Cancer around noon today and new conditions should begin to pop shortly afterward, surprising you to quite an extent. Probably the people born around June 20 and the same date in November and February will enjoy all this more than anyone else, but no one will be left out.

If It's Your Birthday—You must be in the midst of business advances or about to feel some remarkable new influence in your life. I call this a very fortunate time for you, maybe slowing down a trifle during next October, but soon catching up again with its original speed. Perhaps some folks will choose this time for marriage mostly on the love-at-first-sight basis, and even though Taurus is usually slow, it can be a hand grenade when it comes to love affairs—ask the girl who knows one.
